WOMAN WHO TOOK FIANCE FROM JAIL TO WED, ENDS LIFE

Mrs. Rossman Shoots Herself in Her Home as Bridegroom of Three Weeks Enters.

WRITES: "I GO TO JOIN HUSBAND WHO LOVED ME"

Second Marital Experience Followed Arrest of Wooer on Complaint of Young Woman, Who Said She Had Given Him $325 to Save for Wedding.

Mrs. Kate Rossman, who recently, as a well-to-do widow, got Peter Rossman, 24 years old, out of prison by making good the money another woman claimed he had taken from her, shot and killed herself at her home, 807 Rutger street, Monday afternoon.

She got Rossman out of Jail that he might be free to marry her. They were married three weeks ago.

Rossman, an artist, entered the house while she was preparing to shoot herself. He started to open the door of their bedroom when he heard a shot within. He ran from the house calling for help.

Mrs. Mary Grill, who lives next door, ran in, opened the bedroom door and found Mrs. Rossman dying on the bed. She had shot herself through the heart.

"She gasped two or three times then lay quiet." Mrs. Grill told the police.

It was found that Mrs. Rossman had laid out her best black clothes in the front room and had left a note, written in German. The note said: "I am going to my first husband, who loved me. Bury me with my rings on my fingers."

First Husband Left Her $11,000.

Mrs. Rossman had been a widow a little more than six months when she married Rossman. Her first husband's name was Wechoelberger. He had left her about $11,000.

Rossman was arrested a month ago on complaint of Miss Susie Finglier, who is employed at 3721 Laclede avenue. She charged that she had given him money from time to time, $325 all told, to keep until they were married.

She heard he had become engaged to Mrs. Wechoelberger and demanded the money. He told her, she said, that he had given it to his father, who had gone to Germany.

Mrs. Wechoelberger admitted that she and Hoffman were engaged and said she would make good all the money claimed by Miss Finglier. She paid the $325 and costs standing against Rossman. A week later she and the man she took out of a cell were married.

Rossman was taken to the Soulard Street Police Station following his wife's suicide. He told the police there that he knew nothing of the tragedy, having just entered the house to get his lunch when he heard the shot.

Mrs. Rossman's body was taken to the Morgue.

BURNS SOCKS TO CAST EVIL SPELL ON HUBBY; FAILS

Conductor's Wife Says She and Policeman Admirer Paid $25 for "Charm."

WOOED HER, SHE SAYS

Woman Tells Police Board Star Boarder Continually Made Love to Her.

Here is a negro "fortune teller's" recipe for getting rid of a husband, as given by Mrs. Matthew Holmgren, testifying before the Police Board Monday against Policeman Benjamin F. Eichholz of the Angelica Street Station:

"Take a pair of the husband's socks; put them on the floor; put six candles round the socks; light the candles and let them burn."

For this charm Mrs. Holmgren and Policeman Eichholz paid $25, she testified. The fortune teller told them that the day after the oblation of the socks the husband of the woman, Matthew Holmgren, a conducter on the Broadway line, would die on his street car.

Mrs. Holmgren testified that she was afraid to try the candles as her husband would smell them, and smelling candles, would smell a rat. So she threw a pair of socks in the fire, she said, but that didn't feaze him.

Says He Made Love to Her.

She said she and Helmgren informed the fortune teller of the failure of the sock experiment and the fortune teller replied that they had broken the charm and there was nothing more to do but put up with "the old man," as Mrs. Helmgren called her husband.

Policeman Eicholz was the star boarder and the only boarder at the Helmgren home, 1827 East Prairie avenue, for two years. Mrs. Helmgren told the Police Board that during the entire period of his residence at her house he made love to her every day.

She testified that he ceased to board with them on Jan. 22, owing $27 when he left. He was married on April 1 and Mrs. Holmgren says he continued to pay her attentions until April 22.

Holmgren Alive Despite Socks.

Eichholz is being defended by lawyers and Holmgren, who withstood the burning of the socks, has lawyers to represent him. The Police Board is sitting as a jury.

Present for the trial were several neighbors, who said they were ready to testify that they had seen "shadow kisses" on the shades of the Holmgren residence, recognizing the silhouettes as those of Policeman Eichholz and Mrs. Holmgren.

Attorney Andrew Maroney, representing Holmgren, cross-examined Mrs. Holmgren. He asked her if she was not angry with Eichholz because the policeman had married. She said no. He asked her if she had not wanted him to marry her 13-year-old daughter when the child became older. She said the idea never had entered her head.

Maroney also asked her if she did not feel unkindly toward Eichholz because of the $27 board she said he had failed to pay. She also denied that.

Fireman Cut With Razor.

In a fight in the saloon of Charles Hoefner, Fourteenth street and Gaty avenue, East St. Louis, Sunday night Leo Lynch, a city fireman, was cut with a razor. The blade narrowly missed his jugular vein. He was hurried to St. Mary's Hospital on a street car. Walter Clifford, a barber, is held by the police.

LID-LIFTING CASES ARE ALL DISMISSED, RIOT AT ONE COURT

THE SUNDAY LID CLUBS MONDAY SESSION.

Lidlifters' day in court kept many persons very busy and the only man who profited by the police activity was the professional bondsmen. They gathered many dollars, in one case getting three fees from one busy lifter who was "pinched" in three different raids. He got really chummy with the policemen. In court the prisoners did not seem to greatly fear their fate and they patiently waited their turn to be discharged.

Police Magistrates Refuse to Punish Men Held on Disorderly Conduct Charges---Governor Folk Ordered Wholesale Arrests.

Five hundred men, scores of them defendants in cases resulting from the lid club raids, charged a squad of 75 policemen Monday afternoon at the foot of the stairs leading to the Dayton Street Police Court.

The combat between the crowd and the police, which was at the very door of the Dayton Street Police Station, and which reached the proportions of a riot, followed an altercation between Delegate Ferd Warner of the Second Ward and a police sergeant.

Warner, who was bondsmen for a number of the men arrested in Sunday's raids on 61 lid clubs, in which the total number of arrests was 832, was ordered by Judge Pollard to bring his clients into court or their bonds would be forfeited. When he rounded the men up in the waiting throng outside the Sergeant, acting on Pollard's previous order to admit no one else to the overcrowded courtroom, refused to let him in.

The crowd at the foot of the stairs began cheering for Warner, and as the noise stopped proceedings in the courtroom the 75 policemen waiting to testify ran downstairs and shouted to the crowd to disperse.

Several Arrests Made.

The crowd jammed more tightly around the doorway, and the policemen, beating their way to the sidewalk, arrested those who offered resistance to their advance. When they had quelled the disturbance they took into the station as prisoners William and Herbert Powers of 4580 Garfield avenue, D. Dumont of 2218 Cass avenue, R. A. Thompson of 2027 Alice avenue and J. Brueggeman of 2409 North Nineteenth

When the disorder had subsided, Judge Pollard went to the foot of the stairs and was loudly cheered by the tired men in the street as he announced that everyone would be given a chance to get upstairs in turn.

As the cases came up in the Dayton Street Court, where 276 of of them were wocketed, orders of nolle prosequi were Levy.

Seven Fined for Swearing.

Of 409 cases heard in the Clark avenue court by Judge Tracy Monday morning, seven men were fined $10 each on testimony showing that they swore at the policemen, and one case, in which the charge was sellin gliquor without a license, was continued. All the other defendants were discharged. The men fined were Ed Weber, Albert Schoenecker, George Ketterer, David Call and George and John Wagner, arrested at the Acme Rod and Gun Club, and Russell Cain, taken in front of a club at Seventh and Rutger streets.

At the same time, in the Wyoming Street Police Court, Judge Kielber was making wholesale discharges in the 147 cases docketed there. He freed 146 men charged with disturbing the peace, and continued the case of Charles Six, charged with dispensing liquor, until Friday.

The wholesale discharges will not keep the police from making further raids, according to Chief Creecy's statement, made before the courts convened Monday. He said the raids and wholesale arrests would be kept up, Sundays and week days, until the clubs were put out of busines. He anticipated that few if any of the police court cases would "stick."

The Chief Monday dropped his inquiry into the means by which "Boots" Brennan's club, in which "Fish" McAdams is also interested, and the two clubs run by "Billy" Schoenlaub were tipped off in time to close and avoid being raided. He said the tips might easily have been given from places raided earlier in the day.

One small club near Schoenlaub's was raided in the morning, although the other raids did not take place until afternoon. Creecy said he considered this poor police work.

The glory for the raids was in dispute Monday between Gov. Folk and Excise Commissioner Mulvihill, known to saloon men as the "Czar." The Governor said to a Post-Dispatch reporter who questioned him by long-distance telephone that he told Police Commissioner Jones last week to have the lid clubs broken up. Mulvihill, without having learned of his chief's statement, announced that the raids were the result of his appeal to the Police Board.

Why the raids were made just at this time, after the clubs had long been complained of, while license-paying saloons were made to close on Sunday, was a question not answered by the official

DELEGATE HAS BILL TO RELIEVE LID PRISONERS

JIGGERS" GALLAGHER, delegate from the Third Ward, who was busy in the Dayton Street Court, told Delegate Ferd Warner, who was also in court, that he meant to introduce relief bills in the House of Delegates for those of his constituents who were arrested in the raids. The bills, he said, would be claims against the city for the expense to which the arrested men were put in getting bondsmen, and for any other loss which any of them suffered by reason of the arrests.

Gallagher said "Cap" Troll, whose Crown Club, near the Courthouse, was one of those raided, and "Boots" Brennan, whose club at 1430 North Ninth street escaped being raided through a timely tip, would support his relief bills, and would perhaps offer bills in behalf of their own constituents. Warner did not commit himself.

MAN DEMANDED $1000 OF FARMER; SHOT, ESCAPES

W. R. Poag, Living Near Alton, Received Threatening Note.

A man who had demanded $1000 from W. R. Peag, a wealthy farmer living 10 miles south of Alton, on pain of death, was shot by Henry Joerger, a hand in Peag's employ, at 6:30 p. m. Sunday, as he crept under a culvert near the Peag home searching for the tin box of money he had ordered to be placed there.

Joerger fired twice with a shotgun. The figure under the bridge leaped and yelled, then broke through the weeds on the run. A few minutes afterward Sheriff Jones from Edwardsville and Deputy Sheriff Crowe of Alton, who have been guarding the Poag home since the threatening letter was received last Monday, appeared.

They found that the wounded man could be traced by his foot print, a long No. 13 shoe, with a pointed toe. He also left a trail of blood.

The officers followed the fugitive as far as the Edwardsville crossing, where the McKinley System, Alton and other roads cross. By that time the bloodstains had disappeared and after seeing where the man with the big feet had turned north toward Alton the officers lost the trail.

The note left Monday demanded that $1000 be placed in a tin box under the McKinley system culvert 340 yards from the Poag house. Poag notified the Sheriff and officers guarded the house every night during the week except Thursday.

About 10 p. m. Thursday a man was heard in the yard. He rattled windows and called out: "You'd better come across with that money."

He was frightened away and the next night an empty tin box was placed under the culvert as a bait for the blackmailer. Every member of the family and all employes on the farm carried arms.

Joerger describes the man he shot as tall, wearing a slouch hat and a black overcoat. He had bushy hair and was white. Sheriff Jones said Monday that he thought he knew who the man is and that he expected to make an arrest soon.

CHIEFS OF ROADS THAT GAVE REBATES OWNED OIL STOCK

John D. Rockefeller Testifies That Officers of Vanderbilt Lines Were His Partners.

ROCKEFELLER SORRY HE IS NOT TRUST'S FATHER

Says Henry M. Flagler and S. C. T. Dodd Conceived Original Agreement and Tells How His Concern Absorbed Its Smaller Rivals.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—John D. Rockefeller, head of the Standard Oil Co., testifying before Referee Ferriss in the Government's suit against his company today, said, "I'm sorry to say that I did not conceive the plan for the formation of the original Standard Oil Trust. I cannot claim the credit for that. Mr. Flagler and S. C. T. Dodd conceived it."

Mr. Rockefeller, under Attorney Kellogg's cross-questioning, admitted that officers of the Vanderbilt roads and probably W. H. Vanderbilt himself, owned stock in the Standard Oil Co. These roads were among the number that paid rebates to the Standard Oil.

Refreshed by a day's rest at Pocantico Hills, Mr. Rockefeller was smiling when Frank B. Kellogg, special Assistant Attorney-General, resumed his cross-examination.

The original Standard Oil trust agreement made in 1879, the interest which railroad officials had in the Oil Trust and the methods of the trust in absorbing competitors took up most of Mr. Rockefeller's morning on the witness stand.

John D. No Lawyer.

After asking several questions about the reasons for forming the trust, Mr. Kellogg asked: "Who got up this Standard Ooil Trust?"

"I should say that H. M. Flagler and S. C. T. Dodd should have the credit," said Mr. Rockefeller. "I am sure it was not I. I am not so learned in legal matters as that. I do not claim any credit, for Mr. Flagler and Mr. Dodd should have full credit."

Mr. Rockefeller said that the various companies in the Standard trust when it was made were managed as separate and independent corporations.

Lunch was then called and one of the reporters handed to Mr. Rockefeller the following written question:

"Do you think you could receive immunity from prosecution because of your testimony in case proceedings are brought later?" Mr. Rockefeller leaned over as if to whisper to the reporters and said in a loud tone:

"Please tell them I am not in."

Doesn't Believe in Complaining.

"Are you tired of the examination?" he was asked.

"It does not pay to complain. One will live longer and better if he does not."

Preceding the questions regarding the formation of the trust, Mr. Kellogg asked Mr. Rockefeller about the interest of stockholders of the South Improvement Co. in the Standard Oil.

When Mr. Kellogg read a list of the South Improvement Co.'s holders, Mr. Rockefeller named several of them who he said did not hold stock in the Standard.

Replying to further questions, he said he was a stockholder in the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio.

Vanderbilt in Standard.

Mr. Kellogg then read several names of South Improvement Co. stockholders and Mr. Rockefeller said it was possible several of those mentioned might have been stockholders of the Standard if they had the money to purchase the stock.

"How many men did you take into the Standard after 1870?"

"I could not say."

"Was W. H. Vanderbilt a stockholder?"

"I can't say definitely. He might have been a stockholder for a trifling amount.

Railroad Presidents Interested.

"Did you not sign a paper on March 10, 1875, representing an increase of capital stock as follows: 'W. H. Vanderbilt, by John D. Rockefeller, his attorney?'"

"That may be; the paper would be the best evidence."

Mr. Kellogg brought out the fact that Amasi Stone, then president of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway; Stillman Witt, a director of the Lake Shore and Big Four roads, and J. P. Handy, also a director of the Big Four Railroad, were taken into the Standard Oil Co. in the early days.

Had No Pennsylvania Men.

Mr. Rockefeller said that P. H. Watson seemed to have access to W. H. Vanderbilt, and the witness thought he afterwards became president of the Erie Railroad.

"And he was president while he was a stockholder in your company?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

"If so he was not a stockholder for any length of time."

The witness said that he did not think that any officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad were connected with the Standard Oil Co.

"Then in the early days you had a president of the New York Central, president of the Erie, three directors of the Lake Shore and all the stockholders of the South Improvement Co. except three, as stockholders of the Standard Oil?"

"My testimony will show."

Standard Bought Up Rivals.

From a list read by Mr. Kellogg, the witness identified 15 small companies which Mr. Rockefeller said were purchased by the Standard and he believed other companies were bought in Cleveland.

"How many did you keep in operation?"

"I could not say."

"Any of them?"

"I should have to think that over."

"Were not most of them dismantled?"

Tells How Rivals Were Used.

"The smaller ones were used in construction and the larger ones were connected with our plants. We ran the Clark-Schurmer and Schurmer & Co., the Clark, Payne & Co., and Hanna, Bashington & Co."

The witness could not recollect whether any of these except Clark, Payne & Co. were operated in 1880. He couldn't say whether he gave the stock of the Standard Oil Co. in payment for that of the Devoe Manufacturing Co.

Reply to Mr. Kellogg's question whether the brothers of Josiah Macay operated the plant of the Devoe Company for several years after the Standard bought it, Mr. Rockefeller said that he assumed that the organizers of the Devoe company continued its operation. It might have been true, he said, that Mr. Carley operated the Chess, Carley company after the Standard had bought it.

Mr. Kellogg asked whether John Pitcairn and Mr. Vandegrift of the Imperial Refining Co. did not continue as managers of the Imperial after it was purchased by the Standard Oil Co.

"I think the business was conducted in the same manner," said Mr. Rockefeller.

Took in Rival Operators.

The witness said that after the Standard Oil Co. purchased Warden, Frew & Co. and the Atlantic Refinery of Philadelphia and Pittsburg, Mr. Warden, Mr. Frew and Charles Lockhart became stockholders of the Standard, and continued in the management of these companies. He could not recall whether the stock of the Standard was exchanged for stock of the Atlantic Refining Co.

"Who controlled the Standard Oil Co. of Pittsburg?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

"Mr. Frew and Charles Lockhart. There may have been other stockholders."

"You bought stock of the Standard of Pittsburg?"

"Yes, the same as we did in the transaction with the Philadelphia interests."

"And Mr. Frew and Mr. Lockhart became stockholders in the Standard Oil?"

"Yes."

"What basis of value did you take in connection with the Charles Pratt and company?"

Fused as Independent.

"We figured on a fair valuation. We gave stock. In the case of Warden, Frew & Co. we also gave stock in the Standard, as in the case of the Standard of Pittsburg."

"How's that?" asked the furnace mender.

"Why, it used to be said that the saloon was the workingman's club. Now Mulvihill insists that the club is the idle man's saloon. I wonder which is right."

MISHOURI A DOUBTFUL STATE AFTER ALL; BRYAN AND TAFT VOTES SPLIT

Mix-Up in Sixteenth District May Give Half of Electoral Ballots to Each Nominee.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 23.—A possibility that the electoral vote of Missouri will be divided between Taft and Bryan arose today when it was discovered that one Bryan elector received more votes than the lowest Taft elector. Whether Bryan will be given this vote in the electoral college depends upon a decision which Gov. Folk now has under advisement.

Brannock, Bryan elector for the Sixteenth Congressional District, failed to defeat Diffendever, Taft elector for the same district, but he received 223 more votes than did Kiel, the second Taft elector at large. The question that has arisen is whether the electors are chosen by districts or by the vote of the State at large.

In this district it apparently was the impression that no one could be voted for who did not reside in the district, except the electors at large.

WINE, HENS AND SONG AT RECORD CHICKEN SHOW

Champagne and Whisky for Prizes, While 3000 Birds Supply Music.

GIANT RUNTS ON HAND

There Are Some Other Funny Varieties With Some Funnier Names.

If Noah could visit the show of the St. Louis Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association at 1413 Locust street, it would make the old gentleman dizzy, so numerous are the varieties af barnyard fowl on exhibition.

There are nearly 3000 birds in the coops, crowing, cackling and making as much noise as a political rally on the eve of election. The officers of the association say this show will be far and away the best they ever have held.

Quart of Whisky as Prize.

The prizes are almost as varied as the fowls. Whoever exhibits the best light Brahma hen will get a quart of whisky. Whoever shows the finest barred Plymouth Rock cockerel will receive a gallon of strained honey. Whoever wins the decision in the light Brahma cock class will take home a quart of champagne.

The exhibitor of the winning pair of Tulouse geese will get $2, and the man whose Pekin drake is declared by the judges to be the finest in the show will be given a $1 prize, to spend just as he pleases.

Chicken feed, blue ribbons, magazine subscriptions, pairs of fancy pigeons, money and silver cups are among the prizes offered.

The Houdan, which wears a merry widow tuft of feathers, is the most grotesque thing in the chicken coops. To a layman it looks as though the Houdan was a species of the Hoodoo.

All Kinds and Sizes.

The Golden Polish runs the Houdan a close second and the White-Faced Black Spanish has a clown make-up that would be hard to beat. There are chickens that could wrestle with a man and chickens you could put in your pocket.

Among the pigeons are magpies, which look something like mince pies; owls which look like pug dogs; Archangels, Turbits, Satinettes, Blondinettes and Bluettes, Priests, Nuns and Tipplers.

The Runt, or, rather, the Giant Runt, which must have been named by someone who won a bottle of whisky at a raffle show, is the largest variety of pigeon. They sell for $7.50 a pair and up. There are several fine Runts on exhibition.

The show opened for the week at noon Monday.

WOOED GIRL 2 MONTHS, ELOPES WITH HER SISTER

After Fred Gerzema, 21 years old, had courted Miss Cora Rich for two months, he and the young woman's sister, Genevieve, aged 16, eloped to Springfield and were married.

Gerzema lives at 3142 Olive street. Miss Cora Rich worked until recently as a cashier in an Olive street cafe.

Gerzema was arrested Oct. 27 on a charge of carrying concealed weapons as a result of creating a disturbance in the restaurant where his sweetheart was employed.

According to Cora Rich, Gerzema demanded that she quit her position, declaring that her working associates at the restaurant were not fit for her company. The young woman left the restaurant temporarily.

She Caught Them Kissing.

Miss Cora was sick in bed after she learned of the marriage of her sister and her former wooer.

"I loved him," she said, "and I did everything I could for him when he was in Jail. As soon as he was released, however, I found that he was paying more attention to my sister than he was to me. I hid behind the curtains one night and saw them kissing and making love.

"I would not stand in my sister's way, and I told him I could not care for him any more. But I loved him far more than I thought I did.

"They went to Springfield Saturday evening and were married. They came back here last night."

BARNSDALL AID TO ROCKEFELLER IN GAS MERGER

Government Counsel Considers Pittsburg Promoter a Factor in Monopoly.

JOHN D. IN CHARGE

While Not Testifying He Is Planning Control of Southwestern Fields.

Theodore N. Barnsdall, favorite of the House of Delegates combine in the present contest for a St. Louis natural gas franchise, is regarded by counsel for the Government in the Standard Oil case now on trial in New York as an important factor in the Standard's attempt to acquire dominion over the oil and gas fields of the Southwest.

In the intervals between John D. Rockefeller's appearances on the witness stand, New York dispatches state, the aged Oil King is spending much of his time at 26 Broadway in arranging one of the biggest deals the Standard has ever accomplished—the bringing of all the gas and oil interests west of the Mississippi under its control. It is the purpose of the Standard to make every pipe line out of the Kansas and Oklahoma fields its property.

The part taken by Barnsdall in these plans is shown by testimony given a year ago by William G. Rockefeller. He said that the securities given by Theodore Barnsdall for a $7,500,000 loan were never put on the books as collateral. They were sent to the Pittsburg Trust Co. by Rockefeller on request of John D. Archbold.

Trust Easy on Barnsdall.

Rockefeller did not wish to be responsible for them, as, he said, they were not "gilt-edged." The reason, he testified, why the Standard was so easy with Barnsdall was that he was "hard up." The only interest he ever paid was $4964.58, paid Jan. 6, 1906. He gave notes for the interest right along, which were charged up, but later charged off.

Although witnesses have said that Barnsdall is known principally as an oil and gas speculator, the Government has information that he and the companies with which he is connected are the largest producers in the West, their oil and gas lands aggregating 349,000 acres.

It has long puzzled the Government counsel how Barnsdall, disowned by the Standard Oil Co. as an agent, should have and hold such great interests. One of the counsel said to a New York correspondent of the Post-Dispatch:

"We believe that Barnsdall is simply a stalking horse for the Standard Oil Co. To suppose that it would lend to a man said by one of its officials to be 'hard up,' accepting for the loan securities which the same official said were not gilt-edged, is absurd.

"The Standard does not lend money to independents without getting some rather big return. It, therefore, would not permit an independent to get control of one of the most desirable oil and gas fields in the country without a hand in the game.

"If Barnsdall controls the production and the Standard never buys oil wells, the Standard, you may be sure, controls the pipe lines," the counsel continued. "That has been its policy right along. The Perry Oil Well and Gas Co. is a Standard concern. Controlling the pipe lines, the Standard can afford to let others own the wells. In this way the so-called hazard of the business is largely eliminated.

"If Mr. Barnsdall is building a pipe line to cost $7,500,000, as the report from Pittsburg states, where is this 'hard-up' man getting the money? That is a very significant amount.

"But he is also going to pipe the gas into the homes where big pipe has its terminus—St. Louis. It is said that the cost will be an additional $7,500,000. Where wil ithis 'hard-up' man get the money when all the securities he has may be similar to those offered to the Standard Oil Co., and who will be so accommodating, in view of his 'hard-up' condition?"

Up to last week Mr. Barnsdall was known as the "mysterious." According to the Government counsel, the report from Pittsburg has largely cleared up whatever mystery there may have been about him or his affairs and connections.

Dispatches from Pittsburg, where Barnsdall has his office, state that Barnsdall, who is believed there to be acting for the Standard, has obtained control of the Oklahoma and Kansas field.

At the offices of Mr. Barnsdall it was admitted plans were under way for the laying of a 24-inch main from Oklahoma to St. Louis, an air-line distance of 320 miles. The gas line will be 400 miles long and the cost of the main will be about $7,500,000.

To Spend $7,500,000 Here.

Added to this there will be another $7,500,000 before the natural gas will be piped into the homes of St. Louis, as it is explained here that the city, being tubed for artificial gas, must be all fixed over for the natural gas.

What makes the Oklahoma gas deal savors of Standard Oil is the fact that the names of E. P. Whitcomb Joseph Evans and Lewis Emery Jr., are associated with that of Barnsdall in it. Whitcomb is president of the Union Gas Co., which admittedly shares gas territory in West Virginia with the Standard Oil Co. Barnsdall, while denying that he is connected with the Standard Oil, admits in the same breath that he and the Standard are in business together in West Virginia.

Evans and Emery have both been associated in the past with the Standard and have holdings in their names in Oklahoma which are now reported among those turned over to Barnsdall.

It has been reported that a determined effort will be made by certain officials in Oklahoma to have Barnsdall's leases there canceled, on the ground that he is piping a natural resource of the State to an outside market. According to statements at Barnsdall's office any move of this sort will be fought bitterly. Barnsdall is already supplying Kansas City, Guthrie and other places in the Southwest with natural gas.

GIRL'S 10-DAY NAP IS DUE TO RARE HYSTERIA

Miss Loretta Gardner of Ferguson Believed to Have Chance to Recover.

It is a peculiar and rare form of hysteria that has plunged Miss Loretta Gardner, 16 years old, of Ferguson, into the drowsy semi-slumber she has lain in since Friday, Nov. 13, according to Dr. G. F. Chopin of 8548 Church road, who has been attending her at the Mullanphy Hospital.

Miss Gardner, who is the daughter of James Gardner, a wealthy farmer, living a mile east of Ferguson, on the Chambers road, was in perfect health, seemingly, until she fell asleep 10 days ago. She was a pupil at the Ferguson High School and was vivacious and active.

Her condition is now regarded as serious, as all efforts to arouse her or to attract her attention, even when she seems to feel the stupor least, have proved unavailing.

The physicians watching her, however, hope that she will gradually regain the use of her faculties and throw off the spell of sleep which has seized her. Dr. Chopin says it is not unknown for girls of her age to be seized by a similar illness, but that such cases are rare and the malady is dangerous.

After Miss Gardner fell asleep the family tried to arouse her. When these efforts failed, Dr. Johnson of Florisant was called in. He worked with the girl for several days and then ordered her sent to a hospital. She was taken to the Mullanphy Hospital.

Lid Clubs Raided by Folk's Order

statements. It is believed the chief reasons were the murder of Private Louis Forsythe after a fight in the Broadway Club, in Carondelet, and the declaration of Governor-elect Hadley that he would close the clubs when he should get into office.

The fact that the clubs were active for Senator Stone and against Gov. Folk in the late senatorial primary is also recalled in this connection.

Two Policemen in One Club.

It developed that two motorcycle policemen, Joseph Crawford and Willard Pritchard, were in the Elm Tree Club, at Sarah street and Clayton avenue, when it was raided. Crawford, who was at a table with beer in front of him, was one of those arrested. Pritchard left by the back door as Sergt. Sullivan entered. Charges will be preferred against both.

After the first two cases had been heard, Judge Tracy ordered the calling of names of defendants stopped. He had the policemen in the various cases called, asked each if he had any evidence to show disturbance of the peace, and as each gave a negative answer he had the deputies call the names of the discharged persons and order them to leave the courtroom.

"It would not take half a Sherlock Holmes to handle these cases properly," said Tracy in a disgusted speech from the bench. "Detectives should have been sent to these places and evidence procured which could convict somebody of something. The charges which have been brought here are utterly without foundation, and I shall continue to discharge defendants as fast as they are brought before me."

Five raids were made at the Jolly Five Club, 1511 Morgan street, with a total of 27 arrests. It opened immediately after each raid. Several of those arrested there are police characters, whose photographs are in the Rogues' Gallery.

Club's Long Record of Crime.

The Jolly Five Club has for years run unmolested, in spite of many crimes which have been committed there. It was there that William Gagel, an ex-convict, was killed soon after his release from the Penitentiary.

The grand jury, in endeavoring to fix this crime on Deputy Constable Thomas Egan, who had had a feud with Gagel, indicted two witnesses for perjury. Latter Egan killed "Kid" Wilson, known to be a burglar, in a street quarrel due to jealousy.

Others connected with this club were "Red McDonald," killed in a factional fight among members, and "Red" Giebe, convicted of burglary, whom his friends hustled into the Penitentiary, withdrawing his appeal, when evidence was found connecting him with the murder of Frederick E. Scheel, the Belleville law student, in a running fight near a registration place.

WINS SUIT BY EXPLAINING HOW MUCH SHE DRANK

Fighting Divorce, Mrs. Burns Said She Took Liquor Like Others in Society.

The defense of Mrs. Clara Burns that she did not drink "any more than other society women do," and that her husband refused to take her back when she telephoned him from the Buckingham Hotel after he had found a bottle of whisky in her muff, won for her Monday the hard fight she has been making to prevent her husband from obtaining a divorce.

George M. Burns, the plaintiff, lives at 4380 McPherson avenue, and is manager of the Railway Steel Spring Co. Though Mrs. Burans has lived in Detroit since their separation, April 2 3,1907, she came to St. Louis to oppose her husband's suit.

She is a handsome woman of 30 and her husband is seven years her senior.

Smiles Over Victory.

She smiled delightedly when Judge Reynolds announced that the decree would not be granted.

"The allegation is desertion," said the Judge. "It has been shown that Mrs. Burns begged her husband to permit her to return home. I fail to see how it is established that he was deserted."

Burns took the witness stand and told of the trouble that led to the separation. He said:

"It was my wife's birthday and I went home with a nice gift for her. She was not there. In the evening she came home in a carriage. I found a bottle of whisky in her muff.

"She had been drinking. Naturally I was angry. We quarreled and she went away. My objection to her coming home in a carriage was that she had been spending too much money for rigs—more than we really could afford."

Had Been Drinking Some.

"Yes, I had been drinking some," testified Mrs. Burns. "It was my birthday and I went over to visit a woman friend in East St. Louis. I drank some beer and some whisky, after the quarrel at home my husband struck me and I went to the Buckingham Hotel. I called him up from there the next day and asked him to let me return home, but he wouldn't. Then I went to my folks in Detroit. I did not mean to desert him.

It was in her deposition, admitted as evidence at the trial, that Mrs. Burns intimated that all society women drink."

This point was not gone into further except that it was referred to by Attorney John S. Leahy, representing Burns. In this brief occurred these passages:

"We believe that Mrs. Burns' statement that her husband struck her was the result of one of the vagaries incident to and always accompanying continued excessive use of alcoholic stimulants.

"The victim frequently sees things which are but shadows of the imagination; hears things which are but the rumblings of a sickened conscience, and feels things which curdle the unfortunate heart, but which are in reality the vanishing of joy, hope and happiness."

NEW LIFE

After one suffers from acid dyspepsia, sour stomach, for months and then finds the remedy is in getting the right kind of food, it is something to speak out about.

A N. Y. lady and her young son had such an experience and she wants others to know how to get relief. She writes:

"For about fifteen months my little boy and myself had suffered with sour stomach. We were unable to retain much of anything we ate.

"After suffering in this way for so long I decided to consult a specialist in stomach diseases. Instead of prescribing drugs, he put us both on Grape-Nuts and we began to improve immediately.

"It was the key to a new life. I found we had been eating too much heavy food which we could not digest. In a few weeks after commencing Grape-Nuts, I was able to do my house work. I wake in the morning with a clear head and feel rested and have no sour stomach. My boy sleeps well and wakes with a laugh.

"We have regained our lost weight and continue to eat Grape-Nuts for both the morning and evening meals. We are well and happy and owe it to Grape Nuts." "There's a Reason."

Secret Paper Relates Oil Trust's Birth

in operation after its purchase as an independent company?"

"I think so."

Mr. Kellogg called attention to the purchases of Porter, Moreland & Co. and Bennett, Walker & Co., together with Easterly & Davis and John Jackson, and asked Mr. Rockefeller if he did not purchase them.

The witness said the Standard Oil Co. interests bought Porter, Moreland & Co., and Bennett, Warner & Co. and conveyed it to the Acme Oil Co.

"Do you recall Mr. Archbold's testimony in 1879 in this State?"

"No."

Archbold's Testimony Involved.

Mr. Kellogg then read from Mr. Archbold's testimony in which he stated that the Acme Oil Co. was an independent oil company and not owned, controlled or affiliated with the Standard.

"Was the Acme Oil Co. an independent concern in those years?"

"The stock of the Acme was held by several gentlemen."

Counsel for the defense objected to the question on the ground that it was a legal question whether the Standard controlled the Acme or not.

"Was the stock of the Acme acquired in the same manner as the Standard Oil Co. of Pittsburg?"

"I could not say."

"What became of the stock of the Acme Oil Co. on its organization?"

Standard Controls the Acme.

"It was held by individuals, I should say Mr. Pratt, Mr. Archbold and Mr. Frew, and held until it was turned over to the trustees, Vilas, Keith and Chester."

"Whom did the individuals hold this Acme Oil Co. stock for?"

"For the benefit of the stockholders of the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, with the exception of some shares for smaller stockholders. I should say that $225,000 out of $300,000 was held for the Standard."

It had been the plan of the Standard's attorneys to have Mr. Rockefeller tell only of the comparatively early years of the company's existence, and his direct examination included no reference to any happening later than 1882.

Mr. Kellogg, the Government counsel, contends, however, that Mr. Rockefeller himself, by one of his answers, made it possible for the Government to go as far as it likes in the cross-examination.

In his direct testimony, Mr. Rockefeller had said that the business of refining oil was a hazardous one. In his cross-examination Mr. Kellogg asked him how he could regard as hazardous a business which had returned such enormous profits. Mr. Rockefeller replied that the fact that a business had been profitable was no argument against a contention that it was hazardous, and he reiterated that oil refining was a hazardous business, even up to the present time.

Mr. Kellogg maintains that Mr. Rockefeller's gratuitous statement that "It is hazardous up to the present time" opens up to him the whole period of the Standard's history.

Trust 29 Years Old.

Examination of documents filed as evidence by the Standard Oil attorneys and identified by Mr. Rockefeller, reveals the fact that John D. Rockefeller's holding in the Standard Oil have increased in value since 1879 from $700,000 to $150,000,000.

These documents also show that the Trust was formed April 8, 1879, instead of in 1882, as the investigators have heretofore believed.

These facts are revealed by the trust agreement of 1879, which Attorney Milburn dug from the vaults of the Oil Trust, where it has always reposed, and presented as evidence Friday.

Everything Placed in Trust.

That agreement provides that all stocks and interests owned by the Standard Oil Co. and its stockholders be turned over to three trustees, Myron R. Keitch, George F. Chester and George H. Vilas, who shall hold and manage these properties and divide the proceeds among certain men, of whom Mr. Rockefeller is chief, according to their respective interests.

KAISER'S TALK IS AMAZING TO GREAT BRITAIN

English Diplomats Find Evidence of Accuracy of the Hale Summary.

LONDON PAPERS HAD IT

Refrained From Printing Suppressed Interview for Reasons of State.

Copyright, 1908, by the Press Pub. Co. (New York World.)

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The New York World and Post-Dispatch's summary of Dr. Hale's suppressed interview with Emperor William was reproduced here by the Observer in a cable dispatch from New York. It amazed the public. Its authenticity is not doubted in political and diplomatic circles, where the Emperor's views and prejudices are known. Moreover, internal evidence is taken as proof of its accuracy.

An eminent politician who declined to let his name be used suggested to the Post-Dispatch correspondent that the conflict of views expressed in the Hale and the Daily Telegraph interviews might be explained on the simple hypothesis that the Emperor talked with Dr. Hale on the impulse of the moment when he was angry at England, and this fit passed off, and, foreseeing trouble when the interview should be published he sought to neutralize its effect by causing the publication beforehand of a pro-English interview in the Daily Telegraph. It is now declared that the Daily Telegraph received its interview from an emissary of the Emperor himself.

In a recent editorial defending itself against the charge of stirring up bad blood, the Daily Telegraph said: "We never sought the interview."

Will Damage the Emperor.

The violent views and sentiments expressed in the Hale interview are not calculated to foment ill feeling between Germany and England, but it is thought it will irretrievably damage the Emperor.

The Observer calls the article "A sensation absolutely unparalleled," adding that the British Foreign Office was as anxious as the German Foreign Ministry to prevent its publication, and that the London Times had a full copy of the interview, which it suppressed in obedience to the wishes of the authorities here.

"The whole article," the Observer predicts, "is now quite certain sooner or later to see the light."

Sir Charles Dilke refused to talk upon the subject in detail, but he made several interesting comments when the Post-Dispatch correspondent saw him today at his country house near Woking. He remarked that it has been known generally for a long time, that Emperor William is inclined to oratory. He is like Bismarck in that respect, but unlike the Iron Chancellor, he is not a great master in using words to conceal his thoughts.

The Emperor has talked about England, France, the United States, Persia and other countries just as indiscreetly.

Sees No War Cloud.

But regardless of the tangled mass of inference, conjecture and unfounded fear that may arise in some minds, the result of the Emperor's latest interview to be published, Sir Charles observes that it is plain to men of composure that no threatening war cloud can be seen with the strongest field glass. The Emperor certainly does not want war and the Englishmen who have done a great deal of foolish talking do not want war. Moreover, war between England and Germany would be a futile thing. England could not destroy Germany's fleet, which is safely housed in German waters, and the result would be equally barren if Germany should attempt to send a fleet to bombard English coast towns.

When his attention was called to the part of the interview which quotes the Emperor as saying that he would take only Egypt as Germany's portion of the spoils in a great war, Sir Charles Dilke laughed and expressed great surprise that any military authority should suggest the possibility of reaching Egypt by land routes, that being the only possible inference since England absolutely controlls the seas.

The Morning Post publishes the following:

"For some weeks we have been in possession of the fact that another interview in addition to that recently published was stated to have been given by the German Emperor. We also have been in possession of the interview as quoted in the course of the last two days in telegrams from the United States. We were informed, however, that the publication of the interview was not desired even if at one time it had been authorized by the Emperor.

"Under these circumstances and in view of disturbance of tranquility not alone in Germany but throughout Europe, which had been caused by the appearance of the former interview, we have not felt justified in publishing verbatim the interview as it reached us."

Berlin Shocked, Hopes It's False.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—The summary of the suppressed Hale interview with Emperor William, as published in the New York World and Post-Dispatch, is reproduced in cable dispatches to sundry newspapers in Germany. All regard the article as sensational—so sensational in fact that many decline to comment upon it until it is proved beyond chance of denial that the Emperor's sentiments were correctly reported by Dr. Hale, and that Mr. Hale's report is accurately reproduced.

The Vorwaerts unhesitatingly asserts that the article is certainly not invention, for what the Emperor is reported to have said about Japan agrees with former utterances of his, which were proved to be authentic, especially his warnings to all the peoples of Europe to preserve their most sacred possession against the coming of the yellow peril. The Vorwaerts deems it the duty of the government, whose policy the interview is bound to discredit abroad, to at least deny that the Emperor's views are those of his ministers.

Calculated to Work Harm.

The Frankfurter Zeitung says it is clear that this version is correct if the Hale interview was intended to be read in circles hostile to Japan, for there was then a strong feeling against Japan in certain portions of the United States.

The Reichsbote says that if these revelations prove to be genuine, it hopes the publishing of them will strengthen the Emperor's resolution to keep these foreign gentlemen at a distance, for the printing of such conversations is calculated to work the greatest evil in Germany.

The Madgeburg Zeitung finds the sentiments attributed to the Emperor so grotesque that it is not worth while to demand a denial from the foreign ministry. It chooses to treat the interview as a fraud.

The Berliner Tageblatt finds His Majesty's alleged confidences imparted to Dr. Hale about England, America, India, China and Japan so amazing that it expresses the strongest possible doubt as to its authenticity. The Bismarckian Hamburger Nachrichten hopes it will be possible to issue an immediate, unequivocal denial.

CONGRESSMAN LORIMER A VICTIM OF BLOOD POISONING

Illinoisan Stricken in Portland, Ore. —Doctor Says He Will Recover.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 23.—Congressman William Lorimer of Illinois was stricken with blood poisoning here last night and early today a physician was summoned to his assistance. Mr. Lorimer is touring the Pacific Coast investigating needed improvements to rivers and harbors.

While examining a railroad tunnel near Ellensburg, several weeks ago, Congressman Lorimer bruised his arm. No particular attention was paid to the abrasion until Wednesday last, when it began to grow worse. About 2 o'clock this morning the pain became so severe that a physician was summoned and pronounced it a case of blood poisoning. The physician stated that the case is well under control and that Mr. Lorimer's recovery is a matter of a few days.

Elwell was buried with military honors, his comrades in the Naval Reserves firing a salute over his grave.

HAMMERSTEIN'S WARM LOVE NOTES EXHIBIT IN SUIT

Impresario Told Singer Every Heart Beat Was for Her.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Sizzling love letters from Oscar Hammerstein, the famous impresario, were made public today by Miss Francis Lee as exhibits in her suit for $100,000 for alleged breach of contract. The singer says her friendship with Hammerstein lasted for ten years and that he not only wrote her many fervid letters, but made promises which kept her from obtaining a position in grand opera.

One of Hammerstein's letters, written Aug. 2, 1904, reads, in part:

"At your departure on that hot June afternoon you kissed me, you hugged me before a lot of people, in a public place almost, and I felt I was leaving behind me two souls enraptured with me. I was a proud and happy man. Through these seven years you have shared my efforts to lift myself from a terrible financial disaster into prosperity and prominence. You watched over me, you sympathized with me in temporary reverses, an gloried with me in success.

Repaid Her With Love.

"In our room at Forty-sixth street at your side I made my most prominent inventions and conceived and carried out my enormous enterprises.

"I repaid you for it by preserving for you and you alone every artery of love—a love so sweeping that every minute and moment of my existence contained a thought of you. Never in these seven years have I been untrue to you, even in thought.

"Your letters of late have been stereotyped in character and cold, and when I thought of the last one my blood stormed through my veins and I lay still on my bed praying to be struck dead. I knew I was going mad. Was that my Bruce, my girl, my love, my wife in all but name that has suddenly turned from me, writhing in mortal pain?

"That she could turn away from Oscar—Oscar Hammerstein, of whom the town is proud; who, even if I say it myself, towers above common mankind—of Oscar Hammerstein, the almost boy-like man, with the heart of a girl, who never wronged a human being in his life, who had one pleasure in life, one happines in his terrific struggle with adversity, who called Bruce his own, his life, his sunshine! OSCAR."

Has to "Force" Singers.

Hammerstein today said that one little word covered everything in the suit.

"It is the word 'camaraderie,'" said Hammerstein. "I wrote the letter published, as I have written thousands of similar ones. My business is to force singers. Between us must exist the camaraderie which enables me to understand them. They are like spoiled children often, you see. You have to coddle and encourage them and to force their talent, and often expend money to develop their voices.

HARD TIMES IN MOROCCO HIT THE HAREM MARKET

Abdul Aziz, Sultan, Offers 200 Wives to Muley Hafid for $100,000, but Muley Is Shrewd Trader and Bids $95,000.59.

FEZ, Nov. 23.—Abdul Aziz, Sultan of Morocco, is so badly bent financially that he is trying to sell his harem to his harum-scarum brother, Muley Hafid. Abdul has made the official inventory and appraised his 200 wives at $500 per, aggregating $100,000. Muley has the deal under consideration, but it is said he thinks the price is too high.

Abdul stocked his household through an agent at Tangier. All his wives are Circassians and are of surpassing beauty. They are editions de luxe of all the imperial slaves ever bound in Morocco. The six best sellers, according to Abdul's press agent, are worth more than $500, but he is willing to let them go at that figure if Muley is satisfied with the balance of the figures and takes the entire lot.

Muley stubbornly declines to accept them in a lump at the round price of $100,000, however. He wants to purchase them individually. He concedes tha' some are worth $500, but argues that others ought to be cheaper. A wife with a glass eye, for instance, is not worth as much in Muley's market as is one with both optics working. He is understood to have offered $95,000.59.

"Abdul wouldn't sell at all if he could afford to keep them," is the explanation at the palace. "But the cost of living has increased so lately that he has decided to worry along with four or five wives until the financial depression has passed. If the treasury doesn't improve soon he will dispose of all his wives and issue John Smiths.

"It may be rather lonesome for the Sultan for awhile when he goes home to the bosoms of his family and finds only four or five there, but he needs the money."

It isn't certain that the transfer will be made without some trouble. If Abdul and Muley strike a bargain the wives may go on strike. They have been married to Abdul so long that they have almost fallen in love with him.

Under the rules of the stock exchange, as it were, a harem cannot be sold in Morocco without the consent of the haremed. So Abdul will have to hold a sort of primary election before he surrenders his office to Muley. A majority of the votes will not be sufficient. The purchaser must carry every wife.

$30,000 IN BAD BILLS SCORCHED; GANG ARRESTED

Fire in Chicago Residence Proved Valuable Clew to Detectives.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—With the arrest in Memphis yesterday of two more alleged counterfeiters, the secret service operatives believed they had captured all of the gang which has been making the bogus $5 bills which have been circulated in St. Louis. Three others were arrested in Chicago and Joliet Saturday.

A fire in a West Side residence, in which $30,000 in counterfeit money had been "planted," was incidentally responsible for the arrest of the alleged counterfeiters.

The building was partly burned about three weeks ago. When the flames were noticed by neighbors, they ran to the house and attempted to force an entrance. They were confronted by wo men with revolvers, who prevented them from entering. When questioned the men said they could extinguish the blaze without the aid of the fire department or any one else.

Partially Burned Bill Found.

This action excited suspicion, but the authorities were not informed until they began an investigation, which was caused by the finding of a partly burned $5 bill by a milkman on the lake front. The milkman sent the bill to Washington to be redeemed. There it was discovered that the money was counterfeit.

It was found that red ink had been used to represent the silk threads which are woven into the paper from which money is made.

The Federal authorities immediately began an investigation, which was headed by John Wilkie, chief of the secret service, who is now in Chicago. Every fire in the city which has aroused suspicion was inquired into, until finally the Government agents obtained a report of the blaze on the West Side.

Bogus Money in Lake.

It was learned that the burned building housed a gang of counterfeiters, who had on hand $30,000 in bogus currency. After the fire this imitation money was dumped into the lake and the bill that was found by the milkman was one that had been washed ashore.

Miss Iola Barkinson, who was arrested Saturday, at the same time that Edward Logan and Leo Brown were captured, was allowed to remain yesterday in her room at a hotel. It is believed she gave the secret men the information which led to the arrest of the two men in Memphis. Brown is held at Joliet and Logan is a prisoner at the County Jail.

Two of the men under arrest are said to be engravers.

Indian on Bill Cross-Eyed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Chief Wilkie of the Secret Service today announced that a new counterfeit $5 silver certificate (Indian head) has been detected in circulation, having first made its appearance in Providence, R. I.

The counterfeit note purports to be one of those authorized by the act of Aug. 4, 1886, series of 1899, check letter D, face plate No. 2, back plate No. 666, with portrait of Onepap. A defect in the plate gives the Indian chief a cross-eyed expression.

The blue seal closely approximates the genuine in color, but is badly printed, being coarse and rough, with many broken lines. The back of the note is lighter in color, but appears much like the genuine.

A new counterfeit $5 United States note has also been discovered. It purports to be one authorized by the act of March 3, 1863, series of 1907, with a portrait of Jackson, check letter D, No. A 5,247,176.

Free Thanksgiving Dinners.

Fire in Vogt's market, East St. Louis, Sunday, caused scores of chickens and turkeys to break from their crates. Persons attracted to the fire caught them, but failed to turn them over to Vogt. He says his loss is $200.

ACTRESSES DONATE APRONS FOR ST. ANN'S BAZAR

Women Interested in Foundling Asylum Plan Three Days of Euchre.

Several famous actresses have made donations to the apron booth of the St. Ann's Foundling Asylum bazar, which will open for three days Dec. 1. Among stars who have made donations are Julia Marlowe, Maude Adams, Lillian Russell, Ethel Levy and Bertha Kalich.

A committee of women interested in the institution met Sunday afternoon to make final arrangements for the bazar. Euchre in the big dining room daily will be a feature of the three days' entertainment.

DANCING HORSE LEADS SIXTY ALTAR BOYS IN PROCESSION

New Church of the Holy Ghost Is Dedicated With Several Priests Officiating.

A procession of 60 altar boys, headed by Ben Mertens on a trained horse, decorated with red, white and blue ribbons, which danced in time to music, was a feature of the dedication of the new Church of the Holy Ghost, Taylor and Garfield avenues, Sunday.

Mgr. Goller spoke in German, and Father F. Brandt in English. The priests who took part in the ceremonies were: the Right Rev. Father Connolly, vicar general, and the Revs. U. Stanowski, Reis, Siesner, Groll, Reuther, Lempkes, Rother, Ruprecheter, Nicolas, O'Nell, Dempsey, Morfield, Stepka, Pommer, Walsh, Schlereth, Garthoeffner, Bettels, Mispagel and Fischer.

The Rev. John Rothensteiner is pastor of the church. The new building is to cost $100,000.

Undertakers Mean Business.

From the Philadelphia Record.

There are three undertakers' signs in different parts of the city which have called forth both humorous comment and vigorous protest. The first is of doubtful significance, the second brings a natural fear of death to the reader, while the last speaks of the ceremony attendant at death in the light of a formal farce. The first sign is to be seen in the northern part of the city, and reads: "A Step in the Right Direction." One is at a loss to know whether this refers to death or the course of the surviving relatives. The second sign advertises complete funerals at reasonable rates, and concludes: "We have done it for others and can do it for you." The last sign advertises: "A hall, a minister of any denomination, and every requisite for a modern and up-to-date burial.

THREE ARRESTS SAVE BARNSDALL FROM SWINDLE

Pittsburg Millionaires Said to Have Been Caught in Elaborate Trap.

LOOKING FOR OPTIONS

Two Men Grew Suspicious and Looked Up the Promoter's Record.

T. N. Barnsdall, the head of one of the syndicates proposing to bring natural gas to St. Louis, is said in dispatches from Pittsburg to have been interested with other Pittsburg millionaires in heavy financial deals which would have resulted in heavy losses to them but for the arrest of the men who had been promoting the deals. Col. J. M. Guffey the Democratic boss of Pennsylvania; Richard Brinsley Sheridan and John A. Garmen are others mentioned as having been interested in the transactions.

W. A. and John A. Fitzpatrick, brothers, were arrested Sunday and are charged with being confederates of J. Montefiore Meyers, who was arrested Saturday and was taken to New York on a charge of the theft of bonds valued at $4500.

Sheridan and Carmen live in Wilkesbarre, Pa., and they are responsible for the arrests. It is believed that many other Pittsburg millionaires were interested in the deals and that the swindle would have caused a tremendous sensation if it had been carried through.

Meyers and the Fitzpatricks are said to have been promoting a deal to buy options on coal and oil lands, whether in the East or in the West has not been learned. Meyers represented himself as representing English capitalists, the Rothschilds, and said he was looking for a place to invest many millions.

Impressed the Millionaires.

Meyers was of an engaging personality and he was able to impress Barnsdall, Sheridan and Guffey. They are all interested in coal, oil and gas lands and they welcomed the representative of the English millions.

"Meyers came to see me in Wilkesbarre about oil some time ago," Mr. Sheridan said in Pittsburg. "I have known John A. Fitzpatrick for some years, and a letter from him introducing Meyers to me was received.

"Meyers said to me that he represented European capital and thought Wilkesbarre would be an excellent place to build factories and mills on account of its contiguity to the fuel fields. He suggested that before starting to build, it would be a good idea to get options on coal lands, to insure fuel supply. He insisted that local capital support the project as some favoritism might be had from the Legislature.

"I will confess that Meyers won my complete confidence, which was strengthened when I learned that he had interested Col. Guffey. I introduced him to a number of men who I thought might be of service to the project and spent considerable money in boosting the thing.

Wanted in New York.

"To make the thing look still better, Meyers brought Col. Guffey to Wilkesbarre. I do not know what caused it, but Garman and myself grew suspicious and, as Meyers said he was from New York, we asked the police there about him. It was then his record in that city was uncovered and his arrest on a charge of grand larceny followed on Saturday."

The superintendent of police of Pittsburg said:

"From all I can learn, Meyers and his confederates got very little, if any, money, but they were just about ready to unload a swindle that would have torn things wide open in financial circles."

Said He Had $200,000,000 Backing.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Claiming to have the backing of European capitalists to the extent of $200,000,000, according to the story told by the police, Joseph H. Montefiore Meyers, who has spent the last few months in Pittsburg, endeavoring to interest the capitalists of that city in various plans requiring large amounts of money, was brought to this city today and charged with the larceny of five bonds valued at $4500.

Meyers, it was said, claimed acquaintance with many prominent people, both in this country and abroad, and he was introduced at the clubs and dined by Pittsburg financiers, whom he interested in his various plans. Some time ago Meyers got an option on oil properties owned by Col. J. M. Guffey of that city, but failing within the time limit to pay the purchase money, negotiations came to an end.

Previous to going to Pittsburg, Meyers had spent three years in this city, and by means of letters of introduction bearing the names of well-known men, he succeeded in meeting men and women of prominence in a social and business way.

CARRIE WEBBER A STAR FIGURE IN 'BUSY IZZY'

She's Really Wasted, Since Izzy Doesn't Actually Need Her Good Work.

HAS ITALIAN ROLE

Play Moves Along Familiar Lines, With Plenty of Laughter and Music.

GEORGE SIDNEY, who began a week's engagement in "Busy Izzy's Boodle" at the Grand yesterday, "busy Izzies" himself so much to the liking of his audiences that it seems a pity for him to keep Carrie Webber from winning star honors in some offering of her own.

This clever young woman is well equal to such an achievement, but she is now subordinated to the position of Mr. Sidney's leading lady, when, in reality, he could get along just as well without her. The playgoers to whom he makes his appeal go to see his Busy Izzy nonsense only, and to them he is the whole show. This means a waste of Carrie Webber, because any ordinary soubrette could keep things running all right as second to Busy Izzy, and Carrie Webber is too good a character actress for her talents to be thus minimized.

Carrie Webber's Bright Character Work.

Her Rosetta, an Italian organ grinder, in the new "Busy Izzy" play is really an excellent bit of work. It is full of native color, instinct with shrewd fidelity to a real-life type, carefully worked out in its details, and so rich in promise of better achievement that Miss Webber should certainly have a chance to make the promise good.

Even as matters now stand, and in despite of an audience's predilection for Busy Izzy, Miss Webber compels a division of honors more than once and there are moments when most of the honors come to her. In addition to her "character" gifts, she also sings melodiously. Honestly, it will be a shame if greater opportunity doesn't come her way soon.

Same Old Laugh-Getting Busy Izzy.

"Busy Izzy's Boodle" is pretty much the same Busy Izzy vehicle seen during past seasons, in so far as its essentials are concerned, but it keeps its audiences laughing from start to finish, so there seems to be no valid ground for complaint. George Sidney's bland and placid comedy methods are strikingly effective in this direction. One cannot but contemplate him as being the best laugh-getter in his class now on the American stage, since "Gus" Rogers' death, and he would undoubtedly make a valuable mate for Max, the remaining brother of that famous team. But the likelihood is that George Sidney himself wouldn't care for such an alliance. He fills his own houses chock full and impresses one as being of a comfortable temperament content to leave well enough alone. Besides, he gets his laughs with so little effort as matters now stand—if it wasn't that he did get them unfailingly, the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses would almost seem to lie against him. You can't go behind the returns, however.

In "Busy Izzy's Boodle" the hero takes charge of a "busted" bank, throws money around like Coal Oil Johnny, inherits a fortune, buys a circus and takes ship with all his company for L'Hommedieu Islands, somewhere in the tropics, eloping with Rosetta and being vengefully followed by her Italian sweetheart—and there you are. It isn't at all necessary to go deeper into the story, which fulfils its simple mission of keeping Busy Izzy in hot water all the time and sending a laugh a minute across the footlights. There's quite a capable company in support, with much chorus singing and dancing, and the play is well produced from the costume and scenic standpoint.

GIRL SEES MOUSE, DROPS DEAD

Cat Brings Captive to Her and Her Heart Is Affected.

FLORENCE, N. J., Nov. 23.—Miss Mary Isabel Mead died Sunday evening from fright at the sight of a mouse. As Miss Meade left the piano to go into the kitchen the cat brought in a mouse. Miss Meade shrieked: "Don't bring that meuse in here, Tabby!"

Suddenly she complained to her mother of a pain in her heart and in less than a minute she was dead. The attending physician stated she had succumbed to valvular heart trouble, death being hastened by fright.

How Police Tackle Lighting Problem by "Dousing the City's Lurid Glim"

DOUSE the ruby glim and stow
The iridescent ruddy glow:
Put out the red, turn on the green;
Where'er a crimson light is seen
There'll be a copper waiting near
To make the blamed thing disappear.

NO more red glares, the Chief declares.
Shall twinkle on the thoroughfares.
The color that affronts the steer
Shall nevermore be suffered here,
And dancing rays incarnadine
Must vanish from the urban scene.

THE harmless necessary light
That marks the pitfalls in the night—
The trench that waits for stumbling feet;
O, watchful Copper on your beat,
Go smash the thing, the word is said.
No light shall shimmer if it's red.

Count Okum, the sage of the Waseda University, wearing the cap and coat of the American team, tossed the first ball across the plate.

WAR OFFICE IS NOT OPPOSED TO CHOUTEAU SITE

Bridge Can Be Built There Provided O'Reilly's Plans Are Changed.

That the Chouteau avenue site for the Free Bridge has not been rejected by the Government engineers was made clear to Mayor Wells and President O'Reilly of the Board of Public Improvements in a letter received Monday from Robert Shaw Oliver, Assistant Secretary of War, in which the reasons for rejecting O'Reilly's plans are given.

The Government will have no objection to the building of the bridge at the Chouteau avenue site if the suggestions of the engineers are complied with. The Government engineers require that the height of the bridge shall be 65 feet in the clear above the high-water mark of 1903, and that the opening between the piers shall not be less than 600 feet wide.

In the O'Reilly plans the piers were to be 500 feet in the clear, and the bridge 55 feet above the high-water mark of 1905. Mr. O'Reilly says the plans can be changed in a few days to conform to the recommendations of the War Department, but that it will cost more to build the kind of a bridge the Government demands. He says he will send the revised plans to Washington within a week.

In his letter, Mr. Oliver says: "The plans submitted provide for a structure considered objectionable by all navigation and river interests, it being apparent that a structure built in accordance therewith would cause serious obstruction to the stream flow and to navigation through and along the wharf slopes at mean and high stages of the river, and would provide insufficient headroom and width of opening in the channel span.

PLAYER HAS $50,000 FOR PAYMENT ON FAIR GROUNDS

Mayor Wells Expected to Sign Park Bill When It Reaches Him Wednesday.

Comptroller Player told a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday that he will have $50,000 ready to make the first payment on the Fair Grounds purchase as soon as the bill becomes a law, ten days after it is signed by the Mayor. The bill will reach Mayor Wells Wednesday, and no delay in his signing it is expected.

Mr. Player will also have ready 13 notes for the balance of the purchase money, so drawn that the city can exercise the option to pay them off any time it sees fit. The notes will bear 5 per cent interest. Mr. Player says the city could save money by issuing bonds at 3.65 or 4 per cent interest.

The Users of Evaporated Milk

When you come to want Van Camp's Milk, please don't think that other milks are like it. Read these facts—know the truth about it. Then insist on getting just the milk you want.

How Quality is Reduced

It is just a question of evaporation. One-third of the water of raw milk can be taken out by evaporation, or twice as much water can be taken out. The resulting product of both processes will look and taste much alike.

But stop and think of the difference in cost. Realize how it will be when you come to dilute the milk for use.

Is it not perfectly plain why some brands of milk are urged on you by manufacturers as "Just as good as Van Camp's"? Don't take some other brand and think it is like Van Camp's Evaporated Milk.

The Difference

The difference is in the richness, for after purity, richness controls the value of milk.

The manufacturer of some other brand may have told your grocer his brand is as rich as Van Camp's. But is it so?

Just now the United States laws don't protect you and your grocer against weak, Evaporated Milk, because the standard has been relaxed. The law is not enforced. There is much competition and great temptation to reduce the quality so the wholesale prices can be reduced.

Van Camp's Milk has not been reduced in price (your grocer will tell you that) and we positively guarantee you the quality has not and will not be reduced.

Quality is what you must have and we know it is wise to give it to you.

So quality is what you can depend upon in Van Camp's Milk.

Sanitary Milk

But Van Camp's means more than richness, more than economy to you. Our cows are inspected. So are the men who milk them.

Our dairies are sanitary. Cleanliness is carried to extremes. The buildings where our milk is evaporated are built without wood.

When you get Van Camp's, you know that every precaution has been taken against infection. You know nothing of other milks.

Not "Condensed Milk"

Also remember that Van Camp's is not like "condensed milk." All so-called "condensed milks" are half sugar. The sugar is used to preserve them.

Therefore, "condensed milk" is but little more than half milk. And, because of the sugar, you can't use it for cooking.

Van Camp's is nothing but milk. We add no sugar, no starch, no preservative. The preserving is done solely by sterilization.

Van Camp's serves for cooking just as well as for coffee. It serves every purpose of raw milk and cream. And it gives to milk dishes a flavor which you never can get without it.

Those are the facts. Judge for yourself which milk you want. Then insist that you get it.

Get the Milk with this label and you will get it right—

A FAMOUS BEAUTY SPECIALIST

Gives Advice To Women Lacking In Energy and Vitality.

Thousands of women are using toilet preparations unsuccessfully.

Cosmetics fail to improve their thick, muddy complexions or to banish the pimples, blackheads and crow's-feet.

No wonder. Their trouble lies far deeper than the skin. They have bad blood, and bad blood in 90 per cent of the cases arises from inflammation of the mucous membrane. Their blood is filled with poison which is certain to break out in unsightly humors and blotches—while pale, drawn faces, deep circled eyes, stooping shoulders and weak backs complete the story of suffering and despair.

Inflammation of the mucous membrane is catarrh. Banish catarrh and complexions will clear as if by magic, pain vanish, eyes will brighten, faces become plump and shoulders erect. Perfect beauty goes only with perfect health, and perfect health for women can only be obtained through Rexall Mucu-Tone, the one positive and permanent cure for catarrh.

Mme. Swift, 44 W. 26th st., New York City, the most famous beauty specialist in the world and an accepted authority on all relating thereto, has this to say of Mucu-Tone:

"I can strongly endorse the claims made for Rexall Mucu-Tone as a cure for systemic catarrh. Its tonic effects are remarkable. It builds up the strength and restores vitality. If women who are tired and run down, lacking in energy and vitality, will use Mucu-Tone, they will praise it as I do for its strengthening and healing qualities."

Rexall Mucu-Tone works through the blood, and acting directly upon the muco-cells—the congestion and inflammation of which are the sole cause of catarrh—causes them to expel the poison and to resume their natural functions. Thus the membranes are cleansed—the blood purified and revitalized.

We know that Rexall Mucu-Tone will cure every form of catarrh, no matter where located, of how long standing, or by what other names it is known. We guarantee to refund your money if you are not satisfied with the vigorous health and clear complexion it brings you.

NEIGHBOR SAW AUTO NEAR THE GUNNESS FARM

Lamphere's Counsel Are Trying to Prove Woman Is Alive.

LAPORTE, Ind., Nov. 23.—The defense in the Lamphere murder case continued today to introduce witnesses who told of strange incidents at the Gunness house of mystery, in an effort to prove that Mrs. Gunness was still living.

Among the witnesses today was Mrs. Robert Gaeckle, who lives a mile distant from the Gunness place. She said that at 3:30 o'clock on the morning of the fire which destroyed the Gunness home she saw a covered automobile passing her place.

John Ball testified to the finding of a skull in a vault on the Gunness place.

Joseph Maxson, Mrs. Gunness' farmhand, told about the screening of the ashes from the ruins of the Gunness home by Elmer Schultz, the Colorado miner. He minutely described the process and drew a verbal picture of the sluicing box used by Schultz in an effort to find evidence in the case.

Maxson said that one morning Schultz cried out to him:

"I've found the teeth," and with this exclamation Schultz took them out of his pocket.

Emphasis was made by the defense as to the finding of the teeth, whether or not Maxson actually saw the miner take the teeth from the ashes.

Porch Collapses on Boy.

Oscar Clavin, 7 years old, is in St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, his right leg and arm broken and his chest crushed by a heavy stone, which fell on him as he tumbled from the porch of an uncompleted building where he was playing with other boys, at Fourteenth and State streets. His condition is serious. He is the son of William Clavin of 1231 Illinois avenue.

The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of these experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations.

It's only a "tenderfoot" farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds himself regardless of digestion and nutrition. He might almost as well eat shavings for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak" the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the organs of digestion and nutrition and brace up the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an unfailing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by its use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains neither intoxicants nor narcotics, and is as free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

"The Reproof in— Madam's Mirror"

A Little Sermon on Soap

ALAS for fading Beauty! That first Wrinkle—how it grows and deepens.

And the conditions which caused the first wrinkle will surely bring others, unless corrected.

Dear Madam, why have you been so negligent?

Look down at your Kid Shoe and consider this:

So long as that Kid is kept soft, flexible and humid with sufficient oily "dressing," it cannot acquire a hard and deepset wrinkle.

But, let the Kid dry out, and see what happens.

Pardon the comparison, Madam—but you are permitting your Skin to "dry out."

That wrinkle proves it.

Some of the "finest" and "purest" Soaps are Caustic, you know—"drying."

They necessarily contain much alkali in order to "cut" the Fat (from which all Soap is made) and make it "fine." That is why they necessarily parch your skin, through constant use, Madam, just as they would parch the Kid in your shoe.

This being true of fine Soaps, made from pure Fat, it must be doubly true of cheap Soaps, made from rancid Fat.

Fat is the basis of all Soaps, you know.

And Soap-Fat—the ideal food for Bacteria—can be a veritable Nursery for the propagation of Disease Germs, as eminent Physicians testify.

So that Soap-Makers don't dare leave enough free oil (or Fat) in their product to properly feed, soften, and massage the Skin

Enough Fat (in ordinary Soaps), for this purpose would, in time, become rancid—laden with Bacteria—and betray that condition openly to the nostrils, as many Soaps do now under their mask of cheap perfume.

—These transparent Soaps that parch the Skin—

—These white and innocent-looking Soaps that seem clean, and smell clean, but can be veritable incubators for Bacteria and for the transmission of Skin-Diseases—

—These tinted, perfumed, and daintily packaged, Soaps that please the eye and the senses at the expense of the Skin—all these lack one vital element.

That essential element is an Antiseptic,—bland and soothing enough to be imperceptible to either nostril or skin, but powerful enough to kill the germs of Disease or Decay wherever the Soap contacts with them.

"Resinol,"—a Skin-Specific known to every Physician in America,—supplies this necessary Antiseptic Element.

It is not only an effective germicide, but a powerful Skin-Nutrient, as well.

It feeds the hollow spots, controls irritation, itching, redness or eruptions, and heals the casual scratches sure to come in everyday life.

Through its Antiseptic and Preservative qualities, "Resinol" permits the free incorporation, in Soap, of enough bland, softening "Sweet Oil" characteristics to keep the Skin humid, soft, smooth as satin, and much less liable to wrinkling.

And the bland, soothing, healing nutrient qualities of this Resinol Soap are just what are needed by "Madam whose Mirror reproves,"—to ward off coming wrinkles.

"Resinol" Soap softens hard water, is Antiseptic enough to positively insure against Germ-infection from Skin Diseases, and contains enough creamy "Sweet-oil" characteristics in its slow-drying lather to make an admirable medium for facial massage.

Ideal for Toilet, Hairwash, Bath and Baby's use.

THE CIVILIZED WAY

It Is Interesting, to Read an Advertisement That Tells of the New Way, the Civilized Way, If You Please, of Curing Chronic Constipation and its many Attendant Ills.

No one ever thought of treating the bowel-nerves for this common ailment until Mr. Blackburn, "the man behind the pills," discovered that by doing so, the bowels could be aided in a most natural way to perform their function, without draining the system of elements required by the brain and heart.

The duties of a civilized life rob the bowel-nerves more than any other, of their nervous force.

Combining Cascara with refined sulphur, castor oil, wild lemon and the like, by a marvelously intricate method and worked out by the most learned and skilled chemists and pharmacists, results in a sweet little pill, called Blackburn's CascaRoyal Pills, which strengthen the bowel-nerves, physic old and young pleasantly and purify the entire system. All druggists sell ten and twenty-five cent packages. * * *

NO PLACE FOR A DEMOCRAT.

Just why commercial bodies should celebrate the signing of the Jay treaty more than one hundred years ago is a matter that may be left to themselves, for its defects were equal to its merits, but it is certain that such functions are no fit places for true Democrats, real men of the people and genuine candidates for senatorships, cabinet appointments and the presidency.

As the Jay treaty set the Democratic party going in Washington's time and for many years was a hideous nightmare to every member of the organization, it is with surprise and pain that we notice the presence of David R. Francis at one of these celebrations. The next thing we know Democrats will be officiating at some commemoration of the Hartford convention.

A FRIGHTFUL EXAMPLE FOR MR. STONE.

Senator Stone's threat that he will persuade Mr. Bryan to visit Jefferson City and make a speech to the Democratic members of the Legislature advising the faithful observance of the advisory primary results must have been made in forgetfulness of what happened in Kentucky when Gov. Beckham tried the same desperate experiment.

The gentleman from Nebraska made several speeches to the Democrats at Frankfort and then they proceeded to elect a Republican to the United States Senate.

We seem to be threatened with an embarrassment of riches in the way of centennial celebrations next year. There will be two, so that "each side" can have one to suit itself, unless "both sides" can agree.

Now why should there be any juvenile hurrah-for-our-side spirit over the one hundredth birthday party of this venerable metropolis? Indeed, why should there be any "sides" at all? At our ripe old age it would be rather unbecoming to behave like two-year-olds. In place of dissension and contention, it would be better to have agreement and dignity on all sides.

Of course in the end there will be but one celebration. Two at a time would be as unthinkable as two world's fairs. Rival organizations will somehow have to yield to the inevitable oneness of the scheme, and the more gracefully they do it, the better.

DELEGATE DAVIS' GOOD WORK.

In the House of Delegates Friday night Delegate Dwight Davis in the face of a riotous majority boldly tacked two amendments onto the combine's favorite gas measure which are in the nature of saving clauses to protect the city's and the public's interest.

Though the dangers of the Barnsdall bill are by no means removed, the accomplishment of Mr. Davis and the fight he has made in the last three meetings show what one bold man can do with a seemingly small opportunity when it comes to leading a struggle in the public's behalf.

Such work cannot fail of appreciation, and, what is more important, it cannot fail of substantial results even in the worst of situations, where it constitutes the one redeeming feature.

WHERE THE BIG MONEY CAME FROM.

The big contributors to the Republican campaign fund were Andrew Carnegie, J. Pierpont Morgan, William Nelson Cromwell, Whitelaw Reid and Charles P. Taft.

Almost anybody would have guessed the first four, and as to the fifth his generosity is to be explained on family grounds. He is a man of great wealth and the candidate is his half brother. He will be heard from later on, for he is understood to have views and ambitions.

Messrs. Carnegie, Morgan, Cromwell and Reid have been little brothers of Republican Presidents for many a day and so nothing new and startling is likely to develop as a result of their benefactions.

NO PUBLICITY, NO PRIVILEGE.

When John D. Rockefeller started in business it never occurred to him that he would live to see the time when he would be called upon by the Government to explain his methods. In those days Government did not concern itself with business and its right to do so was denied.

The change has been brought about by business itself. Business has insisted upon going into partnership with Government. Business makes many demands upon Government and is in receipt of many special privileges at its hands. It took several years of agitation and litigation to establish the doctrine that corporations created by the people and enjoying favors at their hands were subject to public investigation and regulation.

How many more years must pass before every beneficiary of the protective tariff will be compelled to show his books? There can be no excuse whatever for taxes levied in behalf of a private interest which refuses to deal openly and fairly with the public. Men who insist that they must have governmental assistance should at least prove by the records of their business that they need it and that, receiving it, it will not be misapplied.

ANOTHER MYSTERIOUS STRANGER.

Neither the Terminal Railroad Association, nor any of the lines connected with it, has ever offered any opposition to building the free bridge. It has not opposed it, nor offered any objection to it. It made no fight against the bridge bond issue nor on where the bridge is to be located. If the free bridge is built, the Terminal Railroad Association, as one of the largest tax payers in St. Louis, will pay its pro rata for cost of construction of the bridge, and as such will take the same advantages of it as other tax payers.—President McChesney of the Terminal Association.

The Terminal Trust is asking important favors at the hands of the Municipal Assembly and, in view of the public feeling that exists, it is unfortunate that all this should not have been made known sooner. We feel inclined to blame Mr. McChesney for withholding the facts so long, for their publication a year or two ago would have saved the people of St. Louis a great deal of trouble.

We have no recollection that any member of the Terminal Association or of the Big Cinch appeared on the stump in favor of the free bridge, or that any of their agents, engineers and attorneys have ever facilitated its location and construction, but the circumstances may have escaped us.

As to the Terminal Trust "taking advantage" of the free bridge—when it shall have assisted in its construction—we can only say that the monopoly has contracts with Eastern railroads providing for their use forever not of free bridges, but of monopoly bridges; not of their own independent terminals, but of monopoly terminals. If these contracts hold good the Terminal Trust may "take advantage" of the free bridge, perhaps, in its own well known way, but not for commercial purposes.

The Terminal Association's deep seated affection for the free bridge should have been known before it applied to the Municipal Assembly for more land and more power with which to strangle the enterprise.

KING'S HIGHWAY.

When the projected improvement of King's highway is completed that thoroughfare should be one of the most beautiful in the country if not in the world.

From Forest Park to Easton there is a straight and wide driveway which will be lined on both sides with buildings, the architecture of which will be modern, beautiful and impressive.

The 200 clusters of lamps, eight lights each, will made it "a great white way" if it is desired to import that term to describe it. But that part of Broadway, New York, which goes by that name, is garish, loud and vulgar, made up of theaters, restaurants, hotels, soda water fountains, cheap shops, etc. While the term is impressive and would be an accurate popular description of the new drive, the association might give strangers a wrong notion. The old name King's highway will serve very well, both as an official name and as a popular description of one of the world's great thoroughfares.

A JOKE IN GERMAN.

They have a Low German proverb which goes far in High German politics just now. "When the wine is in the man, then the wit is in the can," is a literal translation of the Low German.

What more needs to be said when German royalty in its usual or unusual condition after dinner threatens to lead Germany into war with the world, because royalty is tired of waiting?

The proverb says all that is needed to explain this sort of thing coming from royalty. A century ago, royalty's after-dinner condition might have threatened the world with the point of the sword. In Germany now it points a joke and the joke is on royalty. The High and Supreme Transparencies who muddle themselves after dinner do not muddle Germany or the German people. The joke is on them, as they find when they recover and begin suppressing interviews before their headaches wear off.

Perhaps the hardest job that falls to a man in politics is to pass the hat after election for the purpose of making up deficits. How about publicity in such cases? If the patriots who contribute under such circumstances can remain under cover it is probable that our party deficits will become something tremendous.

Mr. Cannon does not believe that the President and the President-elect are working against his re-election as speaker, and probably few other people do. Men who put James S. Sherman in the Vice-presidency will hardly balk at Joseph G. Cannon in the speakership.

Nobody has yet found out what would happen to a consumer if he presented himself at the tariff inquiry in Washington and insisted on being heard, but there is a suspicion that he would have things done to him that he would remember for many a day.

A Denver convention has re-elected Samuel Gompers president of the American Federation of Labor. If we had been Mr. Gompers we should have preferred to get it done somewhere else. It doesn't always "take" when it is done by a Denver convention.

It is Judge Grosscup's opinion that Mr. Roosevelt knows nothing of the trust question and that Mr. Bryan is not much better off. This is not a judicial deliverance, however, and considering the loquacity of the gentlemen named, it may not be even judicious.

Kentucky fires have lately consumed 3,600,000 gallons of good whisky. These conflagrations, however, were nothing to the resulting fires that burn in the parched throats of Kentucky's inconsolable Colonels.

Champ Clark lifts up his voice in protest because the price of laths has increased from $2.25 to $6.50 a thousand in six years, but nobody makes a poorer mouth now than the lumber trust.

It's an ill wind that blows nobody good, and tariff revision looks good to the ambitious trusts that haven't enough protection.

In the course of his testimony Mr. Rockefeller said that he knew little about the big rebates paid to his company by the railroads except that the Standard did the transportation lines a favor by receiving them. What are we going to do with an old man of this kind?

For a measure that has the cordial approval of both houses of the municipal assembly and of the Mayor the bill for the creation of a Public Service Commission is having a hard time of it.

On second thought, Tom Johnson, who says he is bankrupt, has concluded that he can keep two automobiles instead of the one that he had frugally reserved for himself.

Elections are coming to resemble Fourth of July celebrations. It takes a long time to make up the list of those who did not know that the ballot law was loaded.

The Kaiser's experience seems to indicate that the surest way to attract wide attention to an interview is to keep it out of the Century Magazine.

Gompers can get votes for himself. Had he been equally winning for Mr. Bryan history might be different.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Speaking Tube Needed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Now that the "pay-as-you-enter" cars have come, the conductor, better known as the cashier, stands with his back to the passengers, and after nightfall he calls the name of the street approaching, but so very indistinctly that it is hard to catch even 10 feet away from him. If he had a speaking tube that would reach half way up the car and a megaphone at the end of the tube, I think the passengers at the front of the car could hear as well as the ones at the back.

VICTOR.

Short Trip Cars Needed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

About a year ago I read in the newspapers that the United Railways Co. was considering the putting on of several cars during the rush hours to be started from Twelfth street and go on the Page line. This was never done, but if it were it would certainly be the greatest kind of a favor to the people working on Washington avenue, between Fifteenth and Eighteenth streets. Since so many of the large houses have moved westward there are more people working in that district and it is very difficult to even get on the cars sometimes, and a seat is really a novelty. And now, since the pay-as-you-enter cars are used, sometimes several cars will go by on which standing room might be obtained, but the crowd on the rear platform is so great that it is impossible to get on and oftentimes they will not even stop.

WORKING WOMAN.

The Dolliver Statesmen.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Senator Dolliver of Iowa is reported to have stated in his address before the Citizens Industrial Alliance that the labor question was easy of solution and the only element necessary for its settlement for all time was that men should deal justly with each other. This is quite as helpful in its way as the directions given by Turner, the great artist, who said that the only thing requisite for success in painting was to select the right color and put it on in the right place. It is to be regretted that we have too many men of the Dolliver type in public life and that on them we must depend for legislation affecting grave questions of state. Legislation is invention—the invention of methods for controlling the great social forces and practical politicians of the Dolliver stamp are ignorant of the nature of the social forces and are therefore in utter ignorance as to the best method to control them.

JAMES T. ROBERTS.

Why Look at the Foot?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It seems that no one has cared to answer the query recently made as to why most men in passing a woman on the street glance at her "ankles" first. The chief reason why some do are: 1. The mere observer of physical beauty (or otherwise) knows that the foot of the present-day woman tells more in a glance than her face. It is a fact that the shape and size of the foot and ankle are a pretty good guide to the proportions of the body, and no amount of artificial plumpness will deceive. 2. He who speculates as to her social standing does not pay any special attention to the amount of jewelry or much to clothing. He looks at the shoe. Nothing that one wears will come so near telling as much about a person as footwear. I would say to this jurist that if man suddenly meets a woman whose countenance is not varnished with false colors; that if that face be honest and pure, man will not glance elsewhere during the passing. It is also a fact that if women do not wish to call attention to their ankles they do not have to keep them on parade in openwork stockings in the winter time, either.

BACHELOR.

Socialism's Menace.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Another man, Dolliver, has called Socialism "a menace." I asked a Socialist how about it. He smiled pityingly. Said he: "Socialism is a consequence, not a cause. The evils that you are all complaining about, they are a menace. The body politic is sick—you admit that fact—but you want to try the old jug-doctors a while longer. It is an age of machinery. You are the victims of machine politics. Both political parties have up-to-date machinery, just as the partisan newspapers have. Good men in both parties; bad men in both parties. Astute, skilled professional politicians in both parties. They will continue in power as long as their followers accept noise in place of wisdom. Socialism is a menace to noisy ones, like Dolliver, who are in politics for business reasons. Calling names is a sign of panic. Prohibition is also a menace, but the machine politician does not fear Prohibition. Battling Nelson was a menace to Joe Gans. And just as the dark Othello of the prize ring grew pale around the gills at sight of the coming champion, so the machine politician takes a spasm when he contemplates the improving prospects of Socialism.

HUGH HENZEL.

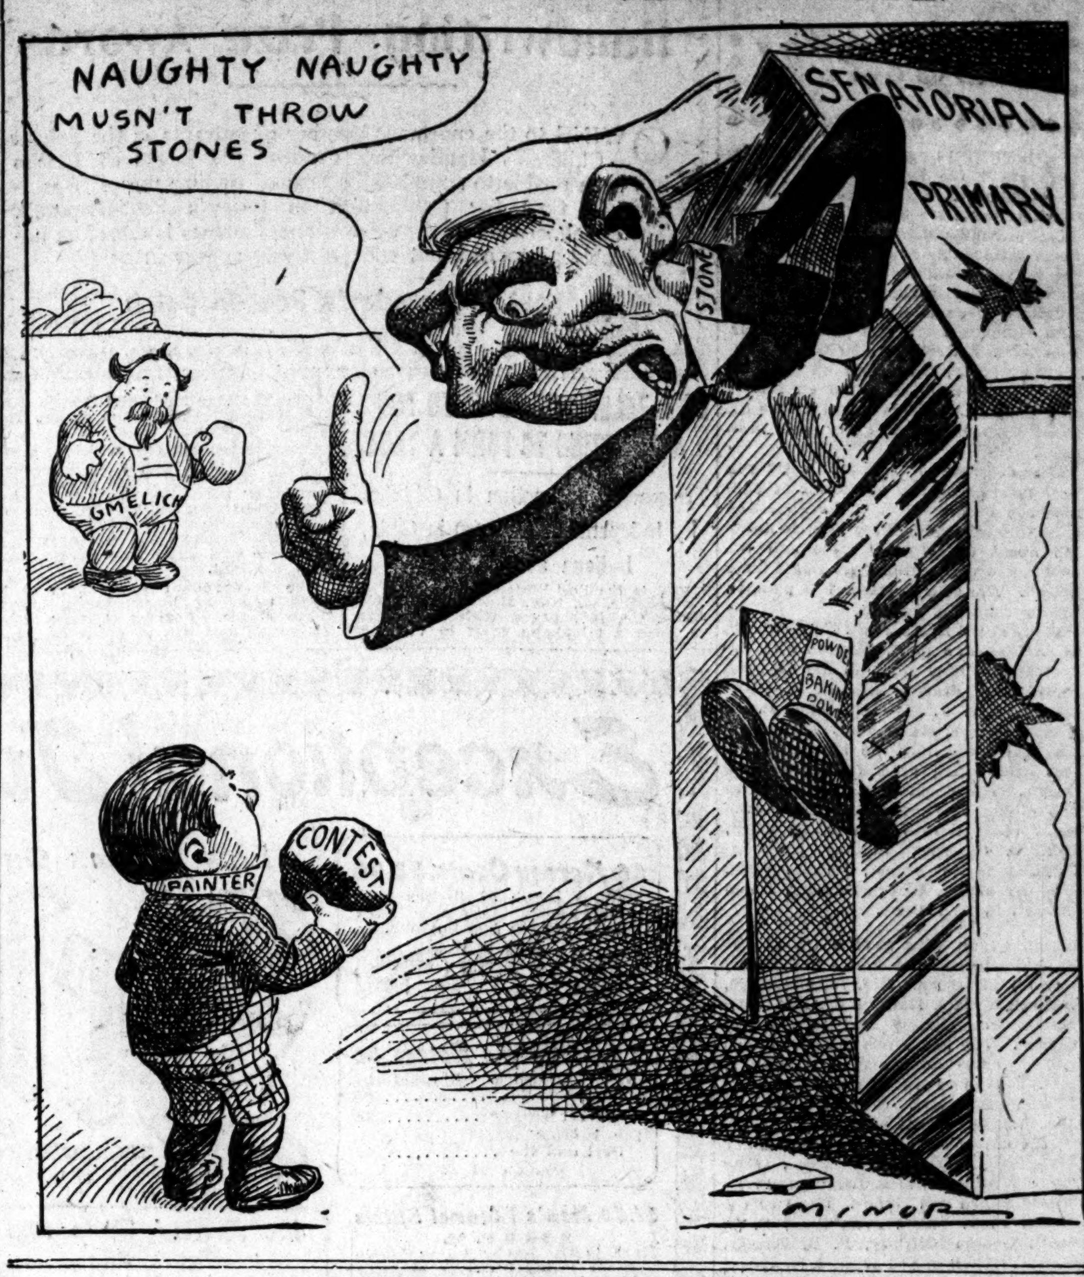

An Experience.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I boarded a car, paid one five-cent fare, and proceeded to occupy one-half of one seat, to which my fare entitled me. In came a husky being in woman's attire—amply able to stand—and began leaning gently on my shoulder. The person in the seat with me got off the car and as I made room for him to pass by this "lady" tramped all over my corns, which I acquired in former years while swinging on street car straps that some woman who had been shopping all day and indulging in some of the pleasures sometimes incident to shopping, might have a seat. After getting her half of the seat she gave me a hunch and asked "Lottie," a much younger woman, if she didn't want to sit down. Now I don't feel bound to be sweeping the horizon to find someone to give my seat to, and a polite suggestion would have informed me that she had a friend with her; as it was I didn't turn around in my seat and look inquiringly—I had more important things to think of. It seems to me that a woman lowers herself and belittles her cause when she resorts to such tactics. How often I have seen workingmen give their seats to healthy young women without as much as a nod, much less a "thank you." A few such experiences convinced me that if a woman don't want to stand up while I sit down, she has my permission to walk. With an humble spirit and contrite heart, I am, meekly and modestly, your unworthy servant,

THE MAN IN THE GLASS HOUSE.

JUST A MINUTE FOR VERSE AND HUMOR

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Clark McAdams.

THE STORK SQUABBLE.

Whether one type of residence is more conducive to race suicide than another will never be settled until we take a stork census.

The Rev. Luccock thinks there is a scarestork on the roof of the apartment, and the apartment dwellers insist that they have more children than the people who live in houses.

This dispute has been going on a long time. It seems the general opinion that architecture has something to do with the birth rate. It is incredible, but you never can tell. It is worth a count. We could very easily ascertain what per cent of the children of St. Louis are born in apartments, what per cent first see the light of day in houses, and the per cent that first look upon the glories of earth from the bad coign of a city flat.

The census counts are in the main silly. Who cares how many of us there are? But it would be interesting to determine grave questions such as that propounded by the Rev. Luccock.

CIDERETTES.

An apple in the cider mill
Is just the thing to fill the bill.
—Baltimore Sun.

And when the cider's in the jug
It's just the thing to fill the mug.
—Indianapolis News.

And when the mug is drunken down
The thing is then to paint the town.
—Nashville American.

And having stepped so near the edge,
The thing is then to sign the pledge.

Ministers in the Joplin district will pray on Thanksgiving for a tariff on zinc. The zinc calf is a newcomer in the religious zoo.

"Gypsey" Smith, the noted evangelist, is to conduct revivals in St. Louis. If he will induce the Gypsies out on the Skinker road to give up the nomadic life and take pews in the sedentary part of the house he will win the lasting gratitude of Washington University.

HISTORY.

(History is full of exaggeration. Cleopatra was not a beautiful woman. She was not in love with Antony. The story of Thermopylae is exaggerated. Brutus is a badly maligned man.—Sig. Guglielmo Ferrero.)

I WONDER what Achilles gave
 The chroniclers in his employ
 To sing us that high-sounding stave
Of how he circled ancient Troy
With Hector dangling like a toy
 Behind his chariot of dread
The while the Grecians danced for joy
 And Ajax stood upon his head?

Say if the fierce Horatius held
 The bloody bridge we read about,
Or if that combat unexcelled
 Was fought with merely buying stout
For other chroniclers without
 The least concern for what was true
So long as there was trotted out
 The liquor of their chosen brew?

And was it that great Caesar died
 Of terror and his faithful friends
Concealed the shame of it and lied
 Of this most mourned of mortal ends,
And Antony had made amends
 With Peter ere he joined the blest
For what the modern apprehends
 He did to Brutus and the rest?

ENVOY.

Told of immortals great and small,
 Tales that are tall and tales too thin,
Into our doubts troop one and all—
 Lord, what a liar man has been!

At any rate, people who live in glass houses cannot throw stones at apartment dwellers who haven't any children.

EVERYBODY'S

ONE Saturday, shortly before the close of business, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had occasion to send some bonds to J. Pierpont Morgan. As all the other employes had left, it was necessary to intrust the negro porter with the errand. He received careful instructions to take the valuable package to Mr. Morgan's office, and to insist upon giving it to "Mr. Morgan of J. P. Morgan & Co. and to no one else."

By commendable persistence and many repetitions of his instructions he finally succeeded in reaching Mr. Morgan, who was in session with several other gentlemen in his private office.

"Ah wants to see Mr. Morgan ob J. Piehpon' Mawgan an' Comp'ny," he doggedly insisted.

Mr. Morgan arose. "Well, I'm Mr. Morgan," he said. "Who are you?"

"Who—er—me?" stammered the porter. "Why, I'se de coon ob Kuhn, Loeb an' Comp'ny, an' heah's de papers Ah done brung you'."

Entirely Too Far.

"Dennis," inquired Mr. Hogan, glancing up over the door of the Postoffice building, "what is the meanin' of thim letters 'MDCCCXCVIII'?"

"They mean 'eighten hundred an' ninety-eight.'"

"Dennis, don't it sthrike you thot they're carryin' this sphellin' reform entoirely too far?"

A Little Previous.

A gypsy, upon release from Jail, met a friend.

"What were you in for?" asked the friend.

"I found a horse."

"Found a horse? Nonsense! They wouldn't jug you for finding a horse."

"Well, but you see I found him before the owner lost him."

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON.

Confessions of the 700th Wife, Translated for the Post-Dispatch

BY HELEN ROWLAND

I CHARGE thee, my Daughter, when love beginneth, question not any man how it will end; for it is only in the beginning of things that a man is interested, even in the cream off the jug, the bubble of the champagne, the meat on the peach, and—the first kiss of a woman.

Therefore, he windest the alarm clock and setteth it for the finish of whatever he contemplateth, from a morning nap to love's young dream. Thus only he getteth out of a flirtation before he getteth too far in. Mark ye his wisdom!

When he beginneth to break his engagements.
When he shorteneth his calls.
When he observeth not that thou flirtest with others.
When he loseth the drift of conversation.
When he yawneth at 9:30 and taketh out his watch.
Then, ah, then, the alarm clock soundeth and love ringeth off!

Yet what mattereth the end? Is it not the end of the cream but skimmed milk and the end of a cigar a butt, and the end of a peach a stone, and the end of champagne dregs, and the end of love a quarrel—or a two-by-four flat and a mother-in-law? And which of these woould ye choose?

Yet a woman clingeth to anything from love to an argument as a terrier to an old shoe. She stoppeth her ears; she heedeth not the signs.

Yea, believe, my Daughter, a man goeth into a love affair as he goeth into a game of billiards. When the game is won he loseth interest—and seeketh a new game.

I charge thee waste not the days of thy youth upon a PRUDENT man, for he is an abomination; and he that signeth not his name to his letters never signeth a wedding certificate.

Yea, he that calleth himself DISCREET writeth warily, and talketh in the abstract, and addresseth thee impersonally. Verily, he taketh care of himself.

And he that glanceth about to see that none be looking when he kisseth thee hath the emotions of a clam and the sentiments of a sausage. He maketh love by insinuation, saying not "I adore thee," but hinting thereat in picked phrases. He sendeth thee presents which mean nothing and a fancy calendar for Christmas. Yea, he keepeth thee guessing all the days of thy life and leaveth thee in suspense for seven times seven months.

For, while discretion is the better part of valor, it is no part of love, but a wet blanket thereon. Yea, the fool who rusheth in taketh all the risks, but he getteth all the fun.

For love is as a feast, which the wise enjoyeth while it lasteth and regretteth not when it is over, nor bothereth about the bill. Selah!

BRADY.—Application for Masonic membership must be made through a Master Mason in good standing, with two Masons as sponsors of applicant's character.

L. P.—Arizona, New Mexico and the pine region of Alabama have been recommended for consumptives, but there are physicians who think treatment at home is best.

EDITH.—Hairless complexion cream: Ten cents' worth epsom salts, 2 ounces rose water, 1 ounce spirits of cologne; mix with 16 ounces of water. This is a French preparation.

HERBERT.—A husband should take his mother-in-law into his home and a wife should take her mother-in-law in. A great deal is to be learned from a capable mother-in-law.

C. C.—In city improvements, total square feet in area taxed is taken and cost figured per square foot; you pay according to number of square feet your lot contains. Sewer tax same way.

W. T.—Stomach washing, if overdone or injudiciously done, may be very harmful. You must depend upon the good judgment of the physician. Change physician if change should seem necessary.

L. J. S.—You could not have voted for Senator Stone and the Republican electors, on a Democratic ballot, without scratching the names of all the Democratic electors and writing in the names of the Republican electors.

X. A.—When your nostril clogs, try a few grains of salt in it. Nebraska, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona are said to have climates favorable to catarrh sufferers. Think as little as possible about catarrh.

ANXIOUS.—In the Bryan family there are three children—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt, William J. Bryan Jr. and Miss Grace Bryan. The Bryan-Leavitt marriage took place in 1903; we do not recall exact date. First Leavitt child (girl) born Sept. 23, 1904; second (boy) Nov. 17, 1905.

A. J. D.—The first religion is said to have been Animism, a belief which ascribes conscious life to every natural object which manifests vitality or force. It is the theory of primitive man to account for the various natural phenomena by which he was surrounded.

C. W. W.—Some reader may tell you how "Ohio cheese" is made. In our list there is no cheese bearing that name. Perhaps it is "plain mouse cheese," such as the old lady asked for. Farmer's Bulletin 166, Agriculture Department, tells of cheese-making, but not "Ohio."

Y. X. Z.—Upper body of hoop snake is bluish, with red lines; flesh colored under body, with black spots. As to its trick of taking its tail in its mouth and rolling like a hoop, that is a negro superstition. The habitat of the snake and the superstition is in the South Atlantic States.

H. A. M.—Relief of piles depends upon cause. When produced by constipation, regular exercise, pure air, moderate eating of food easiest digested, and pure olive oil, teaspoonful or tablespoonful or more, sometimes relieve. Take the oil half an hour after meals or on your food; use lemon juice or salt with it if taste is disagreeable.

H. H.—Plurality is the number by which the votes cast for the candidate who receives the greatest number exceed the votes cast for the candidate who receives the next greatest number, when there are more than two candidates and no one candidate receives a majority of the votes. The majority is the number greater than received by all others combined.

K. M.—You dying intestate, wife can claim a child's share if bank account is in your name; or one-half "if no children," the other one-half would pass to your parents, brothers and sisters or their descendants. You can place bank account in yourself and wife so that upon the death of one of you the survivor would have a right to all, cutting off children or relatives, as the case may be.

J. K.—(Amended answer). The King of England is Albert Edward Wettin. His mother, Queen Victoria, was a Guelph—or, more strictly, Von Este—descended from Azon, Margrave of Este. His father, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, was, however, a Wettin. The Wettins have been dukes, counts and princes of Coburg for more than 800 years. The real head of the Wettin family is King George of Saxony, who is lineally descended from Conrad, Count of Wettin ! 1120. The Coburg line is descended from younger branches of the family.

PRIZE BEAUTY.—"Worth," the famous modiste of Paris, once gave a rule which women often follow when in doubt and this rule is: "Always match your hair or your eyes," but it's questionable whether this rule is a safe one to follow. With dark brown eyes the possibilities are that the young man of 22 has dark hair and a dark complexion and this being the case any of the bright and unusual colors could be worn by him. Red or yellow would be absolutely impossible for a blond, but could be worn by him with good effect.

I. B.—Where costume de rigueur is expected, of course there is only one way to dress. If, however, evening clothes are to be overlooked and a blue serge suit is to be worn, then the tie, collar and shirt should correspond with what one would properly wear with a blue serge suit. For the occasion in question, a white shirt with a business collar (wing or high laydown) and a dark tie (blue polka dot or other harmonious color), either a bow or four-in-hand, and patent leather or highly polished black calf shoes would be the best possible. A white four-in-hand would pass, but it would be making a bad matter worse to wear a white evening bow or to make any conspicuous attempt to approach costume de rigueur in a blue serge suit.

A THANKFUL HEART.

OME hae meat that canna eat,
And some wad eat, that want it."
So runs the grace of Bobbie Burns,
And let each true man chant it.

"But we hae meat, and we can eat,
The Lord be thankit, ever,"
And if we thank him earnestly,
His strength will fail us never.

But Bobbie Burns forgot to say
This one thing in his prayer,
"We thank Thee, if at daily board
There be no vacant chair.

"We thank Thee, God, for health and strength,
And food and drink to spare,
But most of all, we thank Thee that
There is no vacant chair."

"Wild" Preserves.

The English method of preserving is worthy of note because, in the first place, the season lasts so much longer than ours. All through the fall and well into the winter, the English housewife is busy "putting up" fruit—and by fruit she understands many things which an American woman would scorn—rowan berries, hips and haws. Anything which grows on roadside hedges she boils with sugar for a conserve, a relish or even a medicine. The rowan berry is fruit of the mountain ash, and is much valued in England as a wine. The hip is merely the calyx of the rose, and from this and the simple hawthorn berry a rich and palatable elly is made. The hip is also much alued as a medicine.

Berry-Gin.

This, partly a beverage and partly a edicine, is made with any of the wild uit in these proportions: To a pint of e berries add eight ounces of crushed gar candy. Pour over it one pint of od, unsweetened gin, and set aside r three months, shaking the jar daily r the first month. Then strain and rve.

Bridget's Beatitudes.

Blessed is the spoonful of vinegar put to the water with boiled fowls or eats; it makes them tender.

Blessed are the potatoes which, bere being put in oven, are thoroughly eated through on the back of the tove; they will bake in half the time.

Blessed is the cornmeal when the eal is mixed with milk an hour or two efore baking; it will prevent the raw aste which mars so many dishes made rom cornmeal.

Blessed is the coffee which is ground at home. Better still, that which is roasted at home, and above all, that which is carefully washed before being ted.

assed are the frozen potatoes—yes, y are not necessarily spoiled by reezing, but must be plunged at once (after paring in cold water) in boiling water. If they thaw the least bit they re worthless. Frozen onions, too, are ood when fried.

FALL FASHIONS

FURS of all descriptions are used again, either as trimmings or for the whole hat, fur hats naturally being of modest dimensions.

A heavy ribbed serge in one of the ew shades of blue—powder, cobalt r marine—is the smartest material or the tailor-made suit.

A new veil is very large and its pper edge is tied around the hat by running ribbon. Its lower edge is athered into a Pierrot ruffle.

Uniformity of color will prevail among the smartest gowns, with a touch of contrast in the dress itself or in its hat accompaniment.

A dainty lavender silk voile gown of Directoire shape has a skirt with wide tucks and a draped bodice trimmed with lace, and with a sash at one side.

Skirts of broken plaids and checks of inconspicuous character worn with a coat of plain color, threaten to become as popular here as they have been in Paris.

Evening sashes are made from the exquisitely printed crepe de chines and chiffon cloths, and the pompadour ribbons are still in demand for this charming accessory.

Hosts of buttons are being used for trimmings, and in place of the long-employed crochet button pyramid or mound shapes, made of satin piping, ar great favor.

One of the most practical and satisfactory dresses a woman can possess is the one called the semi-princess, consisting of an over-blouse and skirt joined at the waist line.

Skirts are no narrower than they were a few weeks ago, but many practical adaptations of the sheath effect are springing into existence in response to popular demands.

With the fashion for gowns that eed to be lifted at the front to prevent the wearer from treading on hem, embroidered and open-work tockings have become an all-the-ear-around vogue.

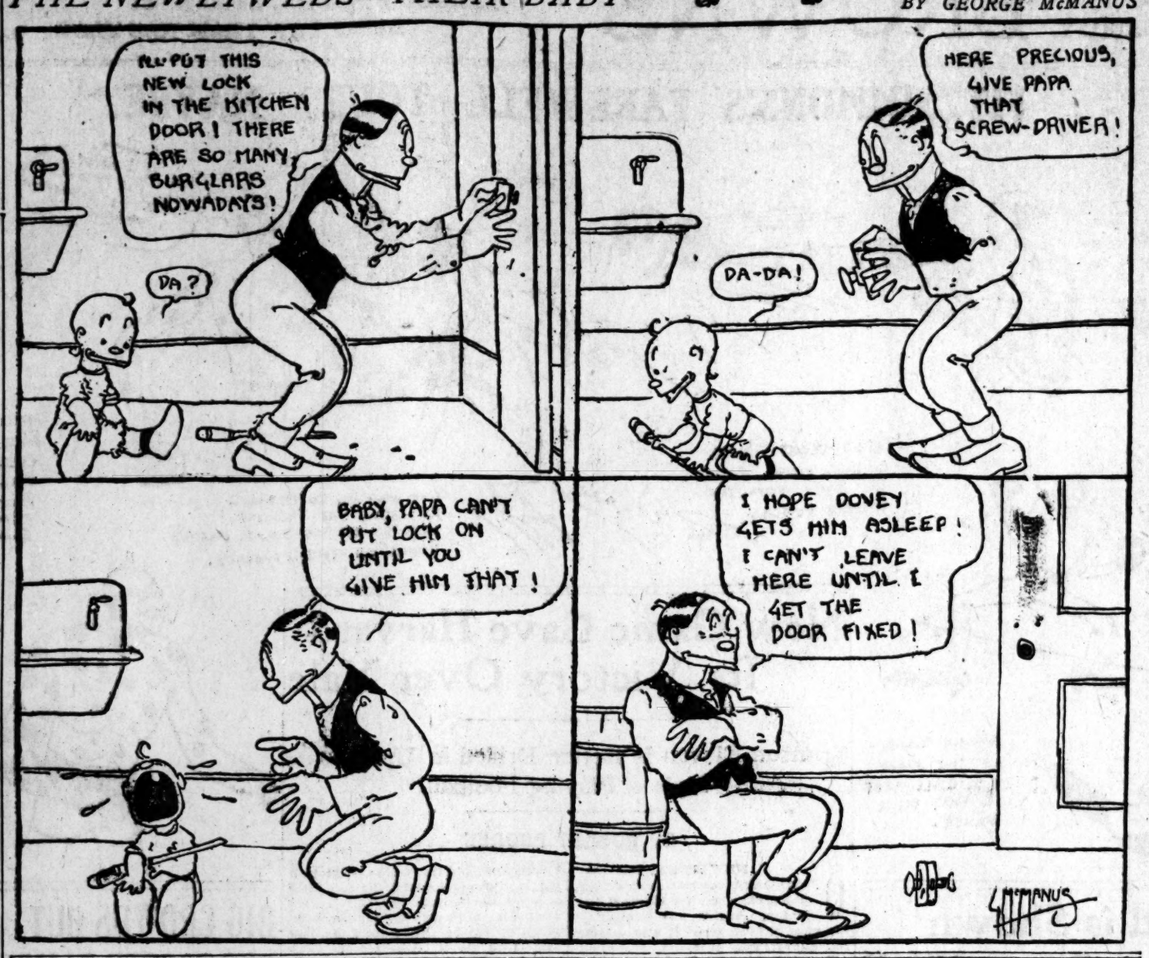

For winter millinery a profusion of ows, both large and small, will be sed.

How To Clean Hair Brushes.

Good hair brushes are costly items, ut if properly cared for they will last or years. To wash them, have ready wo basins, one three-fourths full of oiling water and the other with the ame amount of very cold water. In he first, dissolve a teaspoonful of Gold ust washing powder and shake the ristles up and down in the boiling water until they are thoroughly clean, hen at once rinse well in cold water, nd stand the brush to dry in the air in a warm place, but not too near ire. NO. 5—FERNANDO DE SOTO.

A DARING young Spaniard, who had left home at 19, in 1511, so poor that his only wealth consisted of a sword, a shield and the clothes he wore, returned to Spain from America a few years later with a brilliant reputation and a fortune of $500,000. He was Fernando de Soto. One of his chief reasons for seeking gold and adventure in America had been that he might wed the girl he loved. Now, on his return, he married her. His life ambition seemed crowned. Yet he was not content. More fame and treasure lay hidden in the Americas. He was resolved to seek them.

De Soto had served gallantly in the conquest of Peru. He had been disgusted at Pizarro's treachery toward the trusting natives, and, laden with wealth and honor, had shaken the dust of South America from his feet. But the fever of discovery was hot in his veins. Columbus had found the West Indies and the news had set Europe ablaze. Cortez had conquered Mexico and wrested from the Aztecs vast hoards of treasure. Pizarro had mastered Peru and had seized more gold, silver and emeralds than had before been heard of outside a fairy tale. De Soto was eager to find and conquer another such American country, and thereby make himself as rich and famous as Cortez or Pizarro. He had heard wild rumors of wealth in the land now known as Florida. The Indians could have informed him it was an uncivilized wilderness, barren of treasure. But the Indians by this time hated all Spaniards and would not tell them the truth. So De Soto looked on Florida as a gold country and believed, moreover, that it contained the fabled Fountain of Eternal Youth, which people had sought since the beginning of the world. He managed to make the wealth-greedy Spanish Government share these beliefs, and had himself appointed Governor of Cuba, with full permission to explore Florida—at his own expense.

SEEKING NEW TREASURE LANDS.

Leaving his young wife at Havana and placing the government of Cuba in her hands, De Soto sailed for Florida with about 600 men. His followers cared nothing for mere exploration, nor, it is to be feared, did he. They were gold seekers, glad to serve under so fortunate and daring a soldier of fortune as De Soto had proved himself to be. The expedition landed at Tampa on May 25, 1539. The ships were sent back to Cuba and the explorers began their march northward into the Unknown. Lying stories told by Indian prisoners led them to believe that the treasure country was only a few days' journey ahead of them. The savages hung on the little army's flank, slaying and burning at every opportunity. The men had to hack their way through almost impassable jungles under scorching heat, to sleep in malarial marshes, to starve, to suffer strange illnesses, to guard ever against lurking Indians. Yet on they pressed, northward and westward, always hoping they might next day blunder upon the treasure land. Month after month the ragged, footsore party plodded ahead, hunger, disease and violent death thinning their ranks. At length the most hopeful began to feel the grip of despair. De Soto was asked to abandon the enterprise. He stubbornly refused. The wife he loved and a life of ease in Cuba awaited his return, but he would not be swerved from his hopeless purpose.

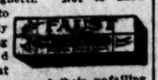

Long ago the wanderers had left Florida behind them. They passed through Alabama (where, at the native village of Mobile, they fought and won a terrific battle against the Indians); thence through swamps and forests until they halted at the banks of a tremendous river. The stream was yellow, turbid, far wider than any they had ever seen—a veritable Father of Waters. From captured savages De Soto learned that this vast river was known as the Mes-a-see-be, or Mississippi. The explorer marveled at the sight. He had his men ferried across the river on rude rafts, meaning to return some day and follow it to its source. Northwest he forced his weary way, through Arkansas and to the highlands of the White River country. Then, turning south, he came upon the hot springs of Arkansas. At first he thought he had found the Fountain of Eternal Youth. But he was speedily undeceived. By this time his comrades saw the utter, aimless futility of the expedition and refused to advance another step. They had come hither expecting to find boundless wealth and a miraculous fountain. They had found nothing of note except one huge river. Heartbroken, his ambition crushed, De Soto unwillingly turned back. He reached the Mississippi's banks on his homeward journey. There, in the summer of 1542, after three years' wandering, he fell ill and died. His heroism had led the savages to believe him a god. His followers, for their own safety, dared not let the natives know the fearless adventurer was dead. So at midnight they laid the hero's body, clad in full armor, in a coffin scooped out of an oak trunk, then weighted and sank the rough casket and its sacred burden into the Mississippi.

There, in an unmarked, unmarbled grave, De Soto sleeps. The mighty river he discovered sweeps on above his armored body. The Mississippi is his only monument, and perhaps it is a grander monument to Achievement than ever rose above another mortal's tomb. Less than one-fourth of the adventurers who had begun the terrible journey found their way, at last, to Cuba. There, on news of her husband's death, De Soto's wife died of grief.

To the man who left home and comfort and fought his way through trackless wilds for the sale of an Idea we owe the first opening of the Southwest and the discovery of the river that is our mid-continent's chief artery of traffic. Yet De Soto, like Columbus, died ignorant of what he had accomplished and believing his life to have been a miserable failure.

WOMAN IN THE INDUSTRIES

By William Hard, in Everybody's

"WOMAN," said a big trade-union official, "is the white Chinaman of the industrial world. She wears a coiled-up queue, and wherever she goes she cheapens the worth of human labor."

An illustration follows:

Miss Mary McDowell of the University of Chicago Settlement, was observing a girl who was operating an unusually heavy and intricate machine in a large hardware factory in an Ohio city.

"Strong, clever girl," remarked Miss McDowell, or words to that effect.

"She's doubled the output of that machine," said the superintendent.

"How did she get such a good job?" asked Miss McDowell.

"Her father," said the superintendent, "had the machine before she had it. We just thought we'd try her."

"How much," said Miss McDowell, being Scotch and suspicious, and not completely satisfied with this proof of the Advance of Woman, "how much do you pay her compared with what you paid her father?"

"Half," said the superintendent.

This girl, therefore, since she was producing twice as much, and earning half as much, as her father had produced and earned, was selling her labor at one-quarter of the masculine market price. It doesn't seem exactly fair, from the standpoint of society. It doesn't seem exactly self-respecting, from the standpoint of the girl.

Today, in the stogy factories of Pittsburg, there are 2211 women and only 463 men. And in three particularly large "trust" factories, in which the last word in cheap, quick production has been spoken, there are 1025 women and exactly 10 men.

On the one hand there is the male hand stogy maker. He just takes the tobacco leaves and, with his own hands, without the help of machines or even of tools (except a knife and a clip), constructs, all by himself, a complete smoke. It took him a long time to learn how to do that. On the other hand, the most nearly perfected type of the team-and-machine process, which is taking his place, and which makes of his single, complete operation a triple one.

Two girls and three machines have now done what one man did before. They haven't done it so well, but they have done it faster and cheaper. And there you have a little social revolution happening before your eyes. Women have driven men into a corner in the stogy trade in Pittsburg and they have done it through their natural affinity with the modern, the most mechanical and automatic, the most simplified and cheapened factory processes.

Of the 463 men in the stogy factories of Pittsburg, 168 are still complete hand stogy makers. Of the 2211 women in the stogy factories of Pittsburg, only 12 have become hand stogy makers, and they make Italian stogies, which are held together along the side with paste and have no finish at either end. The victory in Pittsburg, therefore, has been only a partial victory. Woman has got into industry, but not by excelling, or equaling, man's technique.

French Servant Problem.

By Gaston Jollivet.

"SOON there will be no one to wait on us!" Thus the beginning of a Parisian publicist's plaint upon the servant question in the French metropolis, in a recent issue of the Correspondant, issued fortnightly in the same metropolis. And Monsieur Gaston Jollivet proceeds with a set of grievances, one or two of which are similar to cis-Atlantic troubles, says the Review of Reviews.

In the first place, wages have risen very considerably during the past 25 or 30 years. A valet who would formerly have been satisfied with 70 francs ($14) a month, now receives 90 or 100. The chambermaid, who would have deemed 40 or 50 francs fair compensation, can now easily earn 50 or 60. And the same progressive rate applies to the rest of the servants, especially if you add to their wages so much for wine, laundry and gifts, allowing, besides, if you happen to have a country house, a certain sum for tips. This last-named source of revenue demands special attention, having passed from an accessory detail to a main principle, as the present example shows: "My valet," related a Parisian gentleman at his club, "was dumfounded this morning at the news that I henceforth proposed to spend four months of the year at my country place. He asked me what I thought my average number of visitors would come to. I, in my innocence, supposed he was making the inquiry because he feared there would be too much work for him and I hastened to reassure him with the statement that I was not thinking of inviting anybody. But instead of brightening up, his face got still gloomier, and he replied, in a tone of deferential sadness, that if I were going to have no guests there would be no tips to make up for the unpleasantness of being absent from Paris for four months, and that he therefore preferred to give notice to leave. Upon which, after a deep and respectful bow, he turned upon his heel."

Another source of revenue dilated upon by M. Jollivet is the traditional old "dance of the basket-handle." When the French say that a cook, for instance, "makes the handle of the basket dance," they mean that upon each article purchased at the market cook makes a small private profit by charging her mistress a little more than the article actually cost. This system of theft is a recognized national institution, sanctified by ages of existence and scarcely opposed by truly patriotic French housewives. Hand in hand with this evil goes the analogous custom, complained of by the Correspondent's contributor, according to which domestic servants are paid commissions by the tradesmen who sell them goods for their masters' consumption. (This practice has not yet reached America—at least not as a general custom—although a parallel case seems to present itself when a wholesale merchant gives a secret bonus to the "buyer" who purchases goods for the retail merchant employing him.) But actual theft is common enough, so M. Jollivet avers, among Parisian servants, whom he describes as being chronically dishonest.

BACHELOR GIRL REFLECTIONS

Recorded for the Post-Dispatch.

By HELEN ROWLAND.

EVERY MAN believes, with Lincoln, that you shouldn't try to fool all the people all the time; but somehow it never occurs to him to class his wife as "people."

When a man actually proposes nowadays, his words should be taken down by a stenographer and placed in the Metropolitan Museum among the other curiosities.

Perhaps the reason a man's heart doesn't wither like a woman's is that he spends so much time preserving it in alcohol.

There are times when every wife has a dark suspicion that when the Lord removed that rib from Adam, most of the soft part of his heart adhered to it.

Don't hold a cat or a man too tight; neither of them ever could endure the feeling that he couldn't get away if he wanted to.

Somehow "woman's sacred influence" is always so much stronger when she has a good income to back it up with.

All men are equal—except in a bathing suit.

To be really disappointed in love it is necessary to have been married at least once.

INDIANS CAMP ACROSS THE RIVER TO PREPARE FOR BATTLE WITH ST. LOUIS U. ELEVEN THURSDAY. BROWNS CLOSE TO TOP IN AMERICAN LEAGUE FIELDING AVERAGES BUT A LOW TEAM HAS FLAG. SPORT

INDIANS NOW FEAR A DEFEAT BY ST. LOUIS U.

Carlisle Team Is in Belleville in Bad Shape for Battle Here on Thursday.

WITH his men badly crippled as the result of the hardest schedule attempted by any team in the country, Coach Glen Warner of the Carlisle Indian football eleven, which arrived at Belleville, Ill., yesterday, actually fears that the St. Louis University eleven will defeat his men in the game to be played at Sportsman's Park Thursday afternoon.

Warner declared this morning that he has not decided when he will bring his squad to St. Louis. He wants his men to get a rest. If they were in St. Louis they would be bothered by men who would want to "look the redmen over." There is always danger of a player going on a rampage. At Belleville the squad will be able to go a short distance out in the country and get some practice without anybody watching the men.

If the Carlisle squad is brought to St. Louis the men will in all probability work out at the Stadium, as the Washington University eleven will leave for New Orleans tomorrow evening to play the Tulane University eleven at that city on Thanksgiving afternoon.

Warner is anything but confident when speaking of his chances against the St. Louis U. team. He says that his men have played one hard game after another and as a result the whole squad is battered up. Then figuring on comparative scores, St. Louis U., in Warner's estimation, should give his eleven a hard game. St. Louis U. lost to Pittsburg University, 13 to 0, with a crippled team and without Frank Acker in the game. Carlisle was only able to defeat Pittsburg 6 to 0. St. Louis U. will have had a good rest and all of the men should be right on edge for the game with Carlisle.

Acker will be back in the game. He may not be as strong as he might, but with the crowd to cheer him on and all of his teammates keyed up to their highest speed, Cochems' great halfback will forget that he is still slightly lame from his sore knee and will play in his old-style form.

a Minnesota did the unexpected by defeating Carlisle after Chicago had defeated the Gophers easily. Carlisle is undoubtedly a strong team; in fact, early in the season the Indians were rated almost the equal of any of the big varsity elevens. As Warner has pointed out, it is almost an impossible task to ask an eleven to go into one hard game after another against teams of almost equal strength without the men finally weakening under the strain.

Cochems Starts a New Custom in Sabbath Morning Football Practice

THAT Eddie Cochems of St. Louis University will leave no stone unturned in an effort to take the Indians into camp was demonstrated yesterday morning, when he and his entire squad out at Sportsman's Park for Sunday morning practice. It was the first time in the history of a local school team that practice was indulged in on a Sabbath morning.

Cachems wanted his men to practice catching punts, and he certainly gave them a strenuous workout. He also sent his men through a hard signal and formation practice. In all, the men worked until nearly noon. At the finish of practice, Cochems ordered every man to report at Sportsman's Park this afternoon as early as possible.

Tomorrow afternoon the entire student body of St. Louis University has been granted a half holiday to go out to Sportsman's Park to cheer the varsity while the men go through what Cochems will, in all probability, decide to be the final practice of the season. He may have his men run through a short signal practice Thursday, but it is doubtful. Tomorrow the university band will be out at the park and the students are doing everything in their power to have the men go into the game with Carlisle with confidence.

Cochems is beginning to see his way clear. He will be able to put his strongest team on the field Thursday. Early in the season first one player and then another would have to retire from the game for weeks on account of injuries. Hill and Acker are the only two men on the squad who are still suffering from hurts received in previous games. Wilson, St. Louis U.'s sterling little halfback, has forgotten that he was so badly bruised up a week ago Saturday and seems to be in fine trim. As for the other men, they, too, are all fit.

St. Louis U. is likely to spring a surprise on the Indians in the style of game they will play Thursday. All season Cochems has been having his men practice trick plays and work the forward pass. Up to date nearly all of the team's work in games has been straight football. Cochems has not been teaching his men the tricks and forward pass for nothing. Minnesota defeated Carlisle because the Gophers worked the forward pass. The Minnesota team was previously beaten by Chicago because the Maroons played the open game and time after time worked the forward pass. Cochems will hardly overlook an opportunity to win the game. If his eleven wins from Carlisle he will be more than satisfied with the team's record for the season.

Cayou Will Give Varsity Eleven Last Practice Today Before Tulane Game

COACH CAYOU of the Washington University eleven will give his men their final practice of the season in the Stadium this afternoon. Tomorrow night the wearers of the myrtle and maroon will depart for New Orleans. Monday is always a bad day for the Washington men to get out to practice, but the Indian coach warned all of his players to be sure and attend the practice this afternoon, as there are a number of new formations he wishes to try out.

While the Tulane team is not figured an extra strong eleven, followers of the Washington team have small hope that their eleven will be able to win. The Washington team is entirely too light to be playing varsity teams. Missouri and Vanderbilt made it apparent that a team averaging hardly 160 pounds cannot beat another good team averaging close to 180 pounds.

In spite of the hard game last Saturday all of the Washington men were reported to be in fairly good trim yesterday. Coach Cayou has all of his players in excellent physical condition or they would have been unable to withstand the hard game put up by Vanderbilt and be playing as hard football as they did at the finish of the contest Saturday. The players of the team figure that they have a good chance against Tulane. While they are anything but confident as to the outcome of the contest, they will go into the game with strong hopes of a victory, which would prove a soothing balm for the defeats at the hands of Missouri and Vanderbilt.

YALE STUDENTS PENNILESS; HARVARD HAS THEIR MONEY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 23.—Over $100,000 was lost by Yale students on account of Harvard's victory at Saturday's football game. The undergraduates had a chance, for the first time in years, in the betting, on even terms and there was a general rush to scrape together the money. Many of the Yale boys sold their furniture to raise the cash to wager with, and many of them disposed of their stock securities. Everything went and today the undergraduates are in a position to live on air, unless their parents are heard from.

The Harvard game netted the association $33,000, the rest going to the Cambridge winners. On the Princeton game the receipts for Yale were about $30,000. On the smaller games, including the one with Brown, $8000 was taken in. Of these receipts $10,000 goes for repairs to the field, $5000 to the training table, $10,000 to the crew management for next spring, and $6000 to the track management. The balance is turned into the general athletic fund.

Boston Gets Coast Player.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23.—President Taylor of the Boston American Baseball Club has come to terms with Harry Hooper, the right fielder of the Sacramento State League team, and Hooper will report to Boston next season. The terms have not been made public. This makes two of the Sacramento team to go East next year, as Charley Enright goes to Cleveland.

OVERALL TO PLAY FOOTBALL ON TEAM WITH ECKERSALL

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Big Orvie Overall, star Cub pitcher, will try his hand at football as well as baseball. He has been signed to play on the Eckersall eleven, which will play the Deans at Minneapolis on Thanksgiving day. Overall was a star of the gridiron while at college at the University of California.

Orvie will play guard o nthe Eckersall team. The star pitcher of the twice world champion Cubs is in excellent physical condition.

BIG SOCCER GAME BILLED AT KULAGE PARK THURSDAY

For the first time in years, the soccer promoters are going to make a bid for public patronage against the rugby games on Thanksgiving day, when the Thistles of Tilden, Ill., will be brought to St. Louis for a game with the Shamrocks of the Kulage Park Soccer League, to be played at Kulage Park.

The game will be started at 3 o'clock. Thomas Cahill, secretary of the Kulage Park League, claims that soccer games in Chicago on turkey day afternoon prove good drawing cards and that they should prove equally as attractive in this city. The Tilden team is said to be a strong one, being composed of Englishmen and Scotchmen who played the game in England.

The Lynchs registered the best average in the Interstate Tenpin League matches bowled yesterday, 938 1-3, which gave the team a three-game victory over the Granite City Elks. Worden, with a 210 1-3 average, was high.

New Game Gave Harvard Its Victory Over Yale

Crimson Eleven Is Better Drilled in Up-to-Date Style of Playing Football.

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.

UP-TO-DATE football strategy won the great game for Harvard Saturday. And it was strategy of the most ticklish sort. It was successful, and it was good.

Verwiebe, at fullback, had played a great game. He had equaled the famous Coy himself in battering at the opposing line. His work had overcome the work that Coy was doing for Yale. Under his driving, the Harvard team had marched down to a point squarely in front of the Yale goal posts and less than 20 yards away.

Yale was bracing for a last desperate defense of the goal. It was probable that Yale would have held and taken the ball on downs, then the mighty Coy would have kicked it half way across the gridiron. It was possible that Harvard might have ripped and plunged over for a touchdown—but that was far from a sure thing. And here came the new football.

To the amazement of the whole crowd, the big fullback, still fresh and strong, was called off the field and a new and more slightly built player rushed to take his place. This was Kennard. Probably not 500 people in that vast crowd of 35,000 knew that Kennard had an educated toe and was sure as a sharpshooter of kicking goals. But the coach knew it and took the long chance.

If Kennard had failed to make good and failed to kick that goal, Houghton's reputation would have been ruined and Harvard felt sure that Verwiebe would have made a touchdown.

Kennard, in his clean new jersey that hadn't been rolled in the dirt yet, stepped quickly into position. The signal was given. Instantly the ball was shot back into Kennard's hands. The Yale line hurled its fighting strength frantically ahead. Harvard held like a stone wall. Wtih absolute calmness Kennard dropped the ball to the ground. His foot swung forward, the ball lifted clear of the fighting line only a yard away. Harvard's men had thrown themselves on top of Yale to hold the Yale men down for a single second. Yale men were leaping into the air like hounds after a treed wildcat. Half a dozen half-jerseyed arms shot skyward in a vain clutch at the flying ball. Up it soared just out of reach. In fact, I'm not entirely sure but that one Yale man's fingers just touched it. Up went the ball in an easy, graceful curve. And as it sailed straight over the bar, squarely between the posts, a yell went up from the breathless Harvard stand that made the bleachers tremble. Yale yelled, but it was a feeble whisper beside the joy that reigned across the way.

Perhaps Kennard didn't play a Verwiebe game through the rest of it, but he did well enough and had already won for Harvard. That was not known, of course, until the very end of the second half. In fact, Yale rooters felt quite cheerful when the second began with only four points scored against their team. They were sure that the old bulldog luck would prevail—that the bulldog would hammer and smash his way to victory, just as he has always done.

But there was a steel backbone in that Harvard team after the first score made against Yale in seven long years. Harvard played Yale even through the second, right up to the end of the game. Even the matchless Coy battered into a dazed and weary condition, was fairly tamed. And after that Harvard never was in real danger.

Yale will come into line for the new football next season. To date she has adhered to line smashing, an old Yale tradition. But the new game is the winner.

Browns Infield is Shown to Be Like a Stone Wall

St. Louis Team Stands High As a Fielding Club; But Pennant Went to Trailer.

If good fielding could win pennants the St. Louis Browns would probably have grabbed the flag this last season in the American League, for the official averages just given out show that McAleer's team is surpassed in fielding only by the Chicago White Sox. But Detroit won the pennant, and far down next to the bottom in the list of fielding is found the Detroit club. So it must be concluded that it takes more than good fielding to win championships.

The work of the Browns infield stands out prominently over all others in the American League. Ferris leads all the third basemen easily, while Wallace is the real leader of the shortstops. Williams is but a single point back of Lajoie, the latter being the rightful leader of the second basemen, while Tom Jones stands fourth among all the first basemen of the League.

The averages follow.

AMELING ON SCRATCH FOR COMING BOWLING TOURNEY

Jerry Ameling of the Witter-Christens bowling five, with an average of 195 for the season, is the man who at present is rated the best bowler in the city for the annual handicap tournament of the St. Louis Tenpin Association, to be held on the De Soto Olive alleys starting Dec. 4. The entry list for the tournament closed Saturday night. Harry Kicker stated that he had entered all eight teams of the St. Louis Tenpin League for the tournament. If he did the Schneidts, with a season average of 959, should be the high five-men team, with the Bankers, with a season average of 942.28, second. The Witter-Christens are at present credited with the honor with a 941 average.

BIG WRESTLING SHOW FOR BUSINESS MEN'S GYMNASIUM

Harry Cook of the Business Men's Gymnasium has decided to put on the following wrestling bouts at the "gym": On the evening of the second Tuesday in December, Lloyd Carter vs. Tom Carlos, at 158 pounds; Nathan Spiritus vs. "Kid" Crystal, 188 pounds; Otto Schaefer vs. John Reichenback, 145 pounds. George Baptiste has agreed to referee the contests.

HUESTON NAMES DATES FOR THREE-CUSHION MATCH

Thomas Hueston, world's pool champion and also champion three-cushion player, has set Dec. 7, 8 and 9 as the dates on which he will play Alfredo De Oro for the three-cushion championship emblem. The match will in all probability be played at the Rex. Hueston recently won the pool championship by defeating De Oro.

The match for the three-cushion championship will be for $250 a side and the Jordan W. Lambert championship emblem, valued at close to $1000. The men will play 50 points each evening. Hueston will start practice for the match today. Both Hueston and De Oro have been playing nothing but pool of late and they will have to do considerable practicing to get in form for the three-cushion game.

Charles C. Peterson and Harry P. Cline will inaugurate their 1000-point 18.2 balkline billiard match at the Pine this evening. The men will start play at 6:30 o'clock. It has been agreed to play 200 points each evening and to have the contest end Friday night. The match should be one of the best of the season. Cline and Petersen met in a match last spring. Peterson won and Cline was so nettled that he refused to even speak to "Pete" for weeks.

BIG CROWDS OUT FOR SOCCER GAMES

St. Leos Beat West Ends and Are Now Tied for Lead With St. Teresas.

Teams of six different soccer leagues played their weekly games yesterday afternoon, and large crowds were reported as having witnessed all of the contests. At Athletic Park and Kulage Park, where the teams of the two big leagues play, the games were hotly contested.

The St. Leos and St. Teresas as a result of the games yesterday, are tied for the lead in the league race, with a total of six points each. The St. Teresas, who were leading, were only able to get a tie with the Thistles, while the St. Leos defeated the West Ends 1 to 0. The St. Leos have a large following, because for the past two seasons they have claimed the city championship.

The Shamrocks, leaders in the Kulage Park League, were given quite a surprise yesterday when the Tariffs got a tie with them, neither team being able to score. The St. Malachys defeated the St. Marks in the other game, 1 to 0.

Ferguson Eleven Victors.

The Ferguson team defeated the Alta Sitas in a rugby game played at Ferguson, Mo., yesterday afternoon, 45 to 0. The speed of the Ferguson eleven was too much for the Alta Sitas, and the Fergusons from the start having a comparatively easy time with their opponents.

FITZ AFTER ROLL FROM EUROPEA[N]

Old Man Will Be There T[his] Week Ready to Fight Best Men.

Bob Fitzsimmons will be over in E[ng]land this week, ready to fight all co[m]ers. Incidentally, Ruby Robert will e[le]vate the British stage for a few we[eks] at a stipend that is said to be in li[ne] with the King of England's royal [in]come.

Bob thinks that he is in shape ju[st] now to make a fresh start in the [fight]ing game. It's an idea that he re[fuses] to lay aside with the years. Fi[tzsim]mons says that his only troubl[e has] been the breaking of his hands, [and] that they have grown strong ag[ain] after a long rest.

When he has followed Tommy Burn[s'] example and has cleaned up Gunn[er] Moir, Roche, a few Frenchmen and a[ny] other old thing that floats around E[u]rope with a purse attached, Fitz w[ill] come home and settle down on his fa[rm] over in New Jersey, unless the hank[er]ing for a fight urges him into the r[ing] again in America. Funny how hard th[e] men who have been real champions fin[d] it to let the game go to the young fe[l]lows.

Basket Ball League Formed.

Five teams entered the Lafayet[te] Basket Ball League at a meeting he[ld] yesterday. The teams are: Carv[er] Americans, Mohawks, Russells, Ind[e]pendents. The teams have outdo[or] courts at present. A schedule for indo[or] games will be completed in a few da[ys].

S.S.S. DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is in reality an internal inflammation—a diseased condition of the blood cells which supply the nourishment and strength necessary to sustain our bodies. Uric acid, an irritating, inflammatory accumulation, gets into the circulation because of physical irregularities, and then instead of nourishing and invigorating the body, the blood irritates and inflames the different nerves, tissues, muscles and joints, because of its impure, acrid condition. The pains and aches and other disagreeable and dangerous symptoms of Rheumatism can never be permanently cured until every particle of the cause is driven from the blood. S. S. S. does this because it is a perfect blood purifier. It goes down to the very bottom of the trouble, purifies and cleanses the circulation, invigorates the blood, and completely drives Rheumatism from the system. Plasters, liniments, soothing lotions, etc., may be used for the temporary relief and comfort they bring, but a cure cannot be effected until S. S. S. has removed the cause. It frees the blood of every impurity and makes it a rich, health sustaining fluid, to bring permanent relief and comfort to those who suffer with Rheumatism. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write.

LATEST LIVESTOCK NEWS.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Nov. 23.—Estimated receipts today compare with a week and a year ago as follows:

	Today.	Week ago.	Year ago.
Cattle	5,500	8,000	5,500
Hogs	6,500	9,200	2,000
Sheep	200	1,600	1,700
Horses and mules	400	1,125	25

NATIVE CATTLE—There was not a great many beef steers included in the 2600 natives received, and there was a better tone to the market at prices steady to 10c higher. A load of choice heavy steers sold at $7.25, with several loads of fair to good kinds selling between $5.25 and $6.25, and some common and medium lots from $3.50 to $4.90.

The greater part of the offerings consisted of butcher cattle, and mostly common and medium grades, although a few pretty good kinds were available. Best heifers sold at $5, cows at $4.25, bulls at $3.75, and veal calves at $6. Trade was slow, and while a few early sales were about steady, the general trade was on a shade lower basis, in sympathy with the decline in the Southern division.

The supply of stockers and feeders was light, and the demand was not urgent. Few sales made were at about steady values.

HOGS—A moderate number of hogs arrived and like for the past two or three weeks but few heavy hogs were included and none of them were very good. The market was active and 10@15c higher on all desirable hogs, while the pigs and lights were 5@10c higher. The top of the market was $6, but choice heavy hogs would have brought 10c or 15c more.

All buyers were looking for the good hogs and the offerings sold readily, while the poorer grades went slow. Packers as well as butchers and shippers were good buyers. The bulk of the hogs sold at $5.60@5.85. Best lights, 125 to 155 lbs., sold at $5@5.50, best pigs under 100 lbs., $4.25@4.50. The market closed firm with a good clearance.

SHEEP—Very few sheep arrived, and while there was some holdovers on sale the supply was not sufficient to make a market, and none of the offerings were at all good. There was a good demand and the market was quoted 15@25c higher than the close of last week, with buyers anxious for better kinds.

HORSES AND MULES—The new week opened with a rather quiet trade in horses and mules. Local dealers were somewhat disappointed at the small attendance of buyers on the market today. Receipts of horses were fairly large, the auction supply exceeding 200 head. The demand was mainly from the South. Prices in most instances ruled close to $10 and below those prevailing a couple of weeks ago. All things considered, it could be called a buyers' market. The demand for mules included some inquiry for miners and cotton stock. The trade out of first hands rather quiet, with receipts hardly as large as a week ago.

DEPRECIATION IN PRICE OF WHEAT

Drouth-Relieving Rains in Winter Territory Cause General Selling Movement.

Influenced mainly by the partial breaking up of the drouth in the winter wheat belt and predictions of further good rains all over the territory, operators in local wheat arrayed themselves very generally on the selling side Monday and values were quite sharply depreciated. The market was rather quiet with trading on a small scale, and after the low levels were reached, price movements were sluggish. There was considerable steadiness late, but final prices showed declines of ½c to ⅞c for the day.

Outside of the beneficial showers in the Southwest, which removed what has been one of the most powerful bull arguments, there was nothing new or particularly interesting in the morning's features. Receipts continue very large, both in the Northwest and at winter primary markets, arrivals being far over those of last year and stocks again showed increases the cash demand at most points being rather slow. Early in the day there were no indications of active export business and the flour trade is reported to be dull.

Argentine advices were generally favorable, it being reported that harvesting is progressing well. European damage complaints were again rather plentiful and some strength was shown in continental markets, particularly Budapest, which closed 1c higher. The tone at Liverpool, however, added to the sagging tendency here, prices in the English market being ⅛d to ¼d lower early and closing ½d to ⅝d lower. World's shipments were somewhat smaller than those of the previous week, but considerably more than those of last year, and wheat and flour on ocean passage decreased 912,000 bu.

The market opened fairly active, but under pressure, and prices were soon forced down to levels about ¾c below Saturday's close. During the remainder of the forenoon conditions in the pit were extremely dull, with prices almost at a standstill.

December wheat opened ⅝c lower at $1.03½ and declined to $1.03⅛. May wheat opened ⅝c lower at $1.07⅝, fluctuated between $1.07⅛ and $1.07⅝ and declined to $1.07¼. July wheat opened ⅝c lower at 99⅝c and was offered down to 99⅜@99¼c.

World's shipments of wheat were 9,336,000 bu, against 9,344,000 bu last week and 8,544,000 bu a year ago.

The visible supply of wheat increased 2,420,000 bu and now amounts to 52,920,000 bu, compared with a decrease of 234,000 bu last year, when 41,954,000 bu was left in sight.

A Prussian report under date of Nov. 15 places condition of wheat at 62 per cent and rye 64 per cent. This compares with a year ago of 80 per cent for wheat and 82 per cent for rye.

Berlin wheat closed unchanged, Antwerp wheat unchanged to ⅝c lower and Budapest wheat 1c higher.

There was a fair cash demand at Minneapolis. Stocks there increased 55,000 bu for two days. Minneapolis cars were 642, against 423 last year; Duluth, 884, against 534 last year, and Winnipeg, 1240, against 885 last year.

Trading livened up somewhat in the final period of the session. Traders, having in mind the improved crop prospects resulting from the rains, the enormous amount in sight is shown by the visible supply statement and the very large receipts, particularly in the Northwest, could see nothing on which to base bullish operations. They were cautious about selling, however, noting the continued concentration of large long lines in a few leaders and the fact that these holdings were not disturbed. Offerings late in the day were light and prices showed moderate rallies from the low point, closing steady and still at fractional declines for the day.

December wheat closed at $1.03¼@1.03⅜ bid, May wheat at $1.07⅜@1.07½ bid and July wheat at 99⅝c sellers. Cash wheat was in slow demand and not only dull, but somewhat lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,731,190 bu, with shipments of 555,791 bu and local receipts were 111,684 bu, with shipments of 41,010 bu.

Seaboard clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 721,000 bu.

Corn was quiet and narrow in range, but prices were well supported at firm levels. Traders were deterred from selling and scattered short covering caused by the general raids, which are unfavorable for corn and its movement. Receipts continue light, stocks small, but shipments are still backward. The cash demand for corn was slow and prices easier. Cables on corn closed ⅛d lower. Local prices ruled narrow, but firm throughout and closed ⅛@¼d higher for the day.

The visible supply of corn increased 323,000 bu, and now amount to 1,904,000 bu against a decrease of 859,000 bu, with 2,845,000 bu last year. World's shipments of corn were 2,336,000 bu, against 1,681,000 bu last week and 3,210,000 bu a year ago. Seaboard clearances of corn for the day were 18,000 bu.

Primary receipts of corn were 557,115 bu, with shipments of 816,497 bu, and local receipts were 51,365 bu, with shipments of 3740 bu.

Oats were quiet, but a firm tone prevailed, December selling ⅛c higher at 48⅛c. This was the only transaction. Cash oats were steady. The visible supply of oats decreased 915,000 bu. No oats were cleared from the seaboard today.

Primary receipts of oats were 610,914 bu, with shipments of 467,783 bu, and local receipts were 116,800 bu, with shipments of 85,980 bu.

FLOUR—Receipts, 24,690 bbls; shipments, 11,140 bbls. Quote soft red winter—patents, $4.65@4.90; straights, $4.45@4.55, and extra fancy, $4.20@4.30 in wood; fancy, $3.50@3.75 in jute; low grades, $3@3.25 in jute. HAY—Receipts, 575 tons local and 120 tons through; shipments, 170 tons. Market steady for good hay, quiet on low and medium grades. Quote timothy, choice, $13@13.50; No. 1, $12@12.50; No. 2, $10@13.50; No. 3, $6.50@9; no grade, $3.90@5. Clover—Choice, $11.50@12; No. 1, $9@10; No. 2, $8@8.50; No. 3, $6@7. RAILROAD NEWS AND GOSSIP

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Dun's Review says: "Railroad and miscellaneous bonds continued in urgent demand, and many issues rose to new high prices for the year. The volume of business was again on an average well above any period back to that corresponding with the present in 1904. The convertible issues were the most active, with the volume of dealings in Union Pacific 4s and American Telephone & Telegraph 4s of that class exceptionally large. Both of these bonds reached new high record prices. Interborough-Metropolitan 4½s were in conspicuously strong demand for a time and reached a new high price for the year. International Mercantile Marine 4½s also improved decidedly in activity, and the heavy volume of purchases resulted in a new high price. Other issues notable for activity were United States Steel 5s, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific collateral 4s, Missouri Pacific 4s, Third Avenue 4s, Southern Railway general 4s, Wabash refunding 4s, Wabash-Pittsburg Terminal 4s and Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing 5s."

Railroads reporting for the first two weeks of November show total gross earnings of $11,848,393, a decrease of only 3.9 per cent, compared with the corresponding period of last year. The roads reporting are in the South and Southwest, the systems in the latter section making the best showing. In the following table is given earnings of United States roads reporting for the first two weeks of November, and the same roads for a like period in October and September:

	Gross Earnings. 1908.			Per Cent.
Nov. 2 weeks	$11,848,393	Loss	$483,509	3.9
Oct. 2 weeks	11,561,639	Loss	585,624	4.8
Sept. 2 weeks	10,107,979	Loss	1,037,530	9.3

The classified statement for October shows total gross earnings of $49,940,218, a loss of 5.1 per cent, compared with October last year. There is some improvement over the report for the same roads for September. Very small losses appear in the Southwest and on the Pacific systems included, the latter being the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads. The statement is printed below:

October.	Gross Earnings. 1908.			Per Cent.

FINANCIAL ITEMS.

Referring to the prospects of the Westinghouse Co., a prominent interest said: "The outlook is very promising, and I consider the company in exceptional good condition for a concern which has been thrown into the hands of receivers. The receivers have accumulated $8,000,000 from collections and sale of products which, after the expenses of receivership have been deducted, leave ample funds to carry on the business. The creditors' claims, amounting to around $12,000,000, being settled by cash, stock and long time obligations, there will be no threatening floating debt besides the funded indebtedness. I consider the action of the Readjustment Committee as very satisfactory to all concerned."

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—Wholesale dealers in dry goods and woolens report an increase in sales, and considerable inquiry for some classes of merchandise. Commission men and jobbers of hosiery and underwear are experiencing some difficulty in filling orders, as the demand is urgent and the mills somewhat slow in delivery. Manufacturers of men's clothing report that while fall and winter goods are moving slowly, they are booking very fair orders for spring. Plants employed on women's cloaks and suits are now running to full capacity, and there are urgent calls for immediate shipments. Wool is firm in price, holders of desirable wools asking higher figures.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Increasing activity is reflected in both production and distribution. Freight movements of finished products and crude materials furnish heavier tonnage to the railroads, while receipts of farm products considerably exceed this time last year. Notable gains appear in supplies of provisions and live stock, arrivals of cattle making a new one-day record. New furnaces at Gary will start up early in January. Heavy orders for cars and coaches cause employment of more machinery and hands at Pullman.

St. Louis Money Market.

There is more or less widespread belief in St. Louis that the magnitude of the business expansion will not be very great until after the first of the year. The character of the inquiries for credits recently would seem to bear out this fact.

Many of the prominent Washington avenue houses have been refusing profers of funds at 3½ and 3¾ per cent for three and six months from the East. These quotations do not include brokerage, but indicate, nevertheless, the anxiety of a number of the outside banking establishments to find immediate employment even at minimum rates for their surplus funds.

Rates are unchanged at 4½ to 5 per cent in the extreme, with small loans commanding 5 to 6 per cent. Demand funds are to be had quite freely on acceptable collateral at 4½ per cent.

WEALTHY MAN DEAD ON STAIRS; POLICE PUZZLED

Belleville Officers Investigate Mystery of Peter Waeltz's Fate.

The mysterious death of Peter Waeltz, a well-to-do farmer of Lensburg, Ill., is being investigated by the police of Belleville, where his body was found at the bottom of a flight of stairs on the second floor of the Stookey Building Sunday.

Though a Coroner's jury impaneled soon after the discovery of the body returned a verdict of accident, additional facts which have come to light since the inquest lead the police to suspect foul play.

Waeltz, who was 60 years old, had been missing from his home at Lensburg since Thursday, and he was seen drinking in several saloons near the Stookey Building Saturday night.

With him was a Belleville man, whom the police are trying to find. No one in Belleville who knows this man has seen him since Saturday, and his place of business was not opened as usual Monday.

Money Missing From Pockets.

When Waeltz left home he had $75. When Prof. Frank W. Johnson, a school teacher, found the body the pockets were empty.

Prof. Johnson has living quarters on the third floor of the Stookey Building. He has told the police that he heard a sound as of some heavy object falling at 11 p. m. Saturday, but did not investigate. He is quite sure that it was not the bumping sound of someone falling down a flight of steps. He thinks Waeltz fell or was knocked down at the foot of the steps.

On Waeltz's left temple there was a bruise such as a "billy" might have caused. His neck and his nose were broken. The body lay on its back.

Walter Kohl, a druggist near the Stookey Building, says that he heard the fall and a few minutes later he saw a man come from the direction of the entrance to the building. His hat was drawn down over his eyes, and he started when he saw the druggist. When he saw a policeman coming down the street the man pulled up his coat collar to further hide his face and turned off into a side street.

ADOPTED GIRL BECOMES BRIDE OF MILLIONAIRE

Married Her Short Time After His Wife Died in Sanitarium.

ADOPTION IS ANNULLED

Friends of Aged Furniture Magnate and Former Daughter Approve Match.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Nov. 23.—George F. D. Paine, an aged millionaire, head of the Paine Furniture Co., is aboard ship with his bride of three weeks bound for Ceylon.

Mr. Paine's first wife died only last September, in the Waverly Retreat, where she had been confined for several years.

The woman who is now his bride was until Nov. 2 last his daughter by adoption. On that date he had the adoption proceedings annulled.

Mr. Paine and Miss Margaret E. Johns, who was formerly a teacher in the Berkeley Street Y. W. C. A., were married by the Rev. Francis H Bowley, her pastor, in the Hotel Buckminster, on Nov. 9. Only a few of Mr. Paine's intimate friends were present. Since September Mr. Paine and Miss Johns had lived at the Buckminster as father and daughter.

Fifteen years ago, on one of his trips from Europe, where he had taken Mrs. Paine in the hope of staying her growing mental malady, they met Miss Johns on shipboard. She was returning to Boston after a visit to her home in Plymouth, England, where she was born in 1868.

Mrs. Paine took a great liking to Miss Johns, and when Mr. Paine asked her to give up work and make her home with them she consented.

Adopts Wife's Girl Friend.

In 1900 it became necessary to put Mrs. Paine in an asylum. Not long afterward Mr. Paine legally adopted Miss Paine as his daughter, and she thereupon became Miss Margaret E. Paine and was so known. She was active in church work with her foster father.

Mr. Paine's friends resent criticism of his action in marrying Miss Johns. They say that nothing that money could buy was kept from the insane wife, and that both he and Miss Johns were ever solicitous for her comfort.

Mr. Paine himself said: "I did everything for my wife that it was possible to accomplish. I respect her memory. This girl has been in the family all these years. My wife loved her. Now that she is dead our positions would be open to criticism. If I desire to marry Miss Johns and she is willing to become my wife, I see no reason for delay. I could have had the adoption annulled in by mutual request, and neither God's law nor man's is being violated in this procedure."

JAMES GORDON BENNETT SUED BY GIRL WHO ALLEGES SHE IS DAUGHTER AND ASKS $80,000

Copyright, 1908, by the Press Pub. Co. (New York World.)

PARIS, Nov. 23.—A love romance of James Gordon Bennett's early life was revealed Saturday, when Maitre Desjardins, in the Law Courts, made the opening address in Mlle. Juliette Schettler's suit against Mr. Bennett. The woman's assertion and Mr. Bennett's positive denial of its truth can be briefly summarized:

"You are my long lost Papa," exclaims Mlle. Juliette, now a governess in Canada.

"Stuff and nonsense," Mr. Bennett retorts. "And permit me to add that your suit is malodorous of blackmail."

Mlle. Juliette says that James Gordon Bennett, always gallant, greatly admired Mlle. Charlotte Schettler, known on the stage as Camille Clarmont. Mlle. Juliette vows she is the living proof of Mr. Bennett's sincere admiration for her mother, and that Mr. Bennett acknowledged her as such. She says he promised to give her $80,000 when she was 16 years old, and did give her $20,000 when she was 21.

Maitre Desjardins added that Mlle. Juliette's yearning that Mr. Bennett acknowledge her is based on section 370 of the Code Napoleon, which allows legitimacy to be established under certain circumstances. He said Mlle. Charlotte, Mlle. Juliette's mother, was only 19 years old in January, 1879. At that time Mr. Bennett, with his accustomed generosity, gave Mlle. Charlotte's mother $5000. Then the daughter and Mr. Bennett went on a railroad journey.

"Most unfortunately the train left Mme. Schettler at a railroad station," Maitre Desjardens remarked. Then the force of Mr. Bennett's engaging manners and the violence of his devotion conquered Mlle. Charlotte."

KILLS SELF ON PARK BENCH

William J. Broadfoot, agent for a correspondence school, was found dead on a bench in Forest Park with a bullet wound in his heart early Sunday morning. The discovery was made by Nicholas Pilo, a lamp lighter, who found the body on a park bench. The revolver was clutched in the right hand.

A letter from Mrs. Mary Taylor of Port Hope, Canada, supposed to have been Broadfoot's sister, and a note asking that J. L. Whitesides of the Benton Hotel and K. L. Broadfoot of Port Hope be notified, were found in his pocket.
